A QUICK VICTORY

Georgian Is Selected at the Convention by Wide Margin

By R. W. APPLE Jr.

Jimmy Carter of Georgia won the Democratic Presidential nomination last night.

By an overwhelming margin, the Democratic National Convention ratified Mr. Carter's startling electoral ascendancy of the last six months, made him the first major-party nominee from the Deep Snuth since Zachary Taylor in 1848 and installed bim as the early favorite to capture the White House in November.

There was no serinus threat were placed in nomination-Representative Morris K. Udall of Arizona, Ellen McCormack, the antiabortion candidate, and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California.

It seemed appropriate when Ohio put Mr. Carter over 1,50S votes — a majority — for it was the Georgian's sweep of that state's June 8 primary that started the stampede of party eaders toward him.

Sbouts and Cheers

When Chris Gitlin, the Ohio delegation chairman, announced the vote, the hall burst into shouts and cheers, and Robert S. Strauss, the national chairman, signaled the band to burst into "Happy Days Are Here Again."

Mr. Carter's name was placed. before the convention in Madison Square Garden by Representative Peter W. Rodino Jr. of New Jersey, who two years no trace of the famous ago this month presided over the impeachment hearings that ied to the resignation dent Nixon.

"With honest talk and plain truth," he said, "Jimmy Carter has appealed to the American people. His heart is honest, and the people will believe bim. His purpose is right, and the people will follow hlm."

Alludes to Watergate

Alluding several times to Watergate, Mr. Rodinn said of Mr. Carter:

"As he has brought a united South back into the Demncratic Party, he will bring a united Democratic Party back into the leadership of America and a united America back to a position of respect and esteem in the eyes of the world." Then the diminutive, gray-haired legislatur, nrthodux in all things, proclaimed to the convention the name of "the next President of the United States." The sacnnding speeches were dalivered by Vice Maynr Margaret Costanza of Rochester and by Representativa Andrew Young the Atlanta Democrat whose support encouraged other blacks and white liberals to back Mr. Carter. "I'm ready in lay down tha burden of race," said the handsome former minister, "and Jimmy Carter comes from a part of the country which, whather you know it nr not; has done just that"

Following long-standing tradition, Mr. Carter absented himself from tha convention hall at his moment of greatest triumpb.

But in a apeech yesterday afternoon to a caucus of Mountain State delegates, he promised to reunite conservative and liberal Democrats, and said, "Inever did intend to lose the nomination, and I guarantee

SALISBURY, Rhodesia, July 14 (AP) — Black nationalist guerrillas ambushed three cars carrying whites last night, killed an 8-year-old girl and wounded five persons, security force headquarters announced

An earlier report from unofficial sources had said a white man had also been killed along with the girl.

The communiqué said Rene du Plessis was killed when machine-gun fire raked her family's car. Her father, Paul, 32, was reported wounded, along with Lorraine Lamb, 18. Mr. du Plessis's wife and son were not hurt

The Government said the at-tack occurred 25 miles south of Fort Victoria Informed sources said it had occurred on the main road linking Rhodesia with South Africa.

A man and a boy were wounded in two other ambushes in the same area, the reach secondary school, but about balf the black children who enroll in primary school fail to complete the five-year course. While 2 in 3 whites between 13 and 18 are in secondary school, the figure for blacks is 1 in 25. It is common for black secondary school students to be in their early 20's.

The literacy rate for whites is close to 100 percent. For blacks, it is about 58 percent in the 13 to 22 age group. How-ever, since half of all black students drop out before finishing primary school, reading ability among those considered literate Standards among teachers in white schools are much higher than in black. Fewer than 10 percent of the 69,000 teachers in black schools have the mini-mum qualifications required of the 45,000 teachers in white chools. In addition, salaries nf teachers in white schnnls are 30 to 50 percent higher than those of teachers in the black institutions.

Wide Gap at Universities The disparities are equally wide at the university level, For whites, there are 10 universities, eurolling about 75,000 students. For blacks there are three, with a total eorollment of about 4,000. An additional 300 blacks study at white uni-versities, incloding about 200 at the medical school of the University of Natal. About 1 in 60 white school leavers qualify for university. Among blacks, the figure is 1 in 2,500.

There are no figures to measure the disparities in the quality of school huildings, equip-ment and grounds, but they, too, are wide. Most white schools are set in spacious suburban grounds, with ample playing fields and acres of grass and trees. Most black schools are set on dusty plots in black townships, with a grassless playing field, if any. While the teacher-student parable to the levels achieved in private school education in the United States, the overworse than the worst that stu dents experience in New York's crowded public schools. In nearly half of all black schools, a two-shift system is in opera tinn. Students on the shift system average less than three pared with five hours in white

Photographs taken during the riots showing blazer-clad schoolboys tossing stones at olicemen suggested something of the resentments engendered among blacks of school age. In Soweto, the largest of the black townships involved in the riot-ing, a number of schools were verely damaged by fire.

Government spokesmen at-tributed much of the upheaval to young "tsotsis"—the term is Zulu for booligans—who pose a serious crime problem black townships. But critics of the Government says that the "tsotsi" problem would be less severe if there were fewer school dropouts and more jubs available for those

Critics also maintain that re-sentments run high even among the small minority who gradu-ate from secondary school, and the even smaller group who go on to a university. Frustrations among this "elite," the critics say, are beightened by the system of job reservation, under which must skilled jnbs, includng those of crane drivers and ilmen, are reserved for whites. The result, according to critics, is that even thuse who

Curb on Breast Cancer X-Rays Urged for Symptomless Women

WASHINGTON, July 14—An There is no disagreement outside group of experts consulted by the National Cancer risks involved, and Dr. Frank Institute has recommended that the agency discontinue the agency discontinue the routine use of X-ray screening for breast cancer in symptom-free women under the age of 50. according to informed sources.

A preliminary report drafted coder the leadership of Dr. Lester Breslow of the University of California at Los Angeles is now in the hands of officials of the cancer institute and of the American Cancer Society. The two organizations are Joint sponsors of a nationwide breast cancer screening program in 27 cemiers involving more than 250,000 womeo, baff of whom are between 35 and 49. The program uses both physical examinations and X-rays.

Officials of the two agencies are aeriously considering whether to make changes in the screening program. They have invited the program directors from around the country to Washingtoo on Monday to discuss the options. The meeting will be open to the public.

The Breslow report will be made available at that time. It is likely to stir debate about the value of X-rays in early detection of breast cancer, which is expected to take the lives of 33,000 women in the United States this year.

The controversy arises from a concern that benefits in detecting cancer at an earlier stage through X-ray screeoing—a technique known as mammography—in women without noticeable symptoms may oot be substantial enough to outweight the possibility that the radiation itself may increase the risk of developing cancer.

Issues in Hospital Strike

PARTIES-District 1199, National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees representing 35,000; workers, most of whom are nonprofessionals. Thirty-three hospitals, 27 belonging to the League of Voluntary Hospitals and Homes of New York Fourteen Nursing homes, including nine belonging to the league. Ten municipal bospitals that bave affiliations with voluntary bospitals.

ISSUES-The union seeks at least a cost-of-living increase, which was recommended last month by a three-man Federal fact-finding panel. The union says that under the contract that expired on June 30, about three-quarters of its members earned $181 a week while the highest wages, for senior social workers and social work supervisors, ranged from $18,788 to $23,541. The hospitals say the proportion of workers earning $181 a week is 25 to 30 percent, and that they have no money for any increases, since the state bas put a limit on Medicald and Blue Cross payments that now make up most of the hospitals' income. The unions have agreed to arbitration, but the hospitals have refused to do so, saying they have no money to pay any

In the process, District 1199 of the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees has established a reputation as one of the most ocially conscious of all unions, a union whose supporters think is still close enough to the workers' basic struggia for a living wage that it has not become complacent: a uninn for whom the labor movement is still

The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. once called District 1199 "my favorite union," and bis widow, Coretta King, is honorary chairman of the national union, which has 100,000 members, 70,000 of whom are in the New York metropolitan area.

The alliance between the civil rights movement and the union is no accident, for some two-thirds of 1199's members are black or Puerto Rican. In the hospital division, whose 40,000 members are on strike, the figure is closer to 72 percent. Half of the union's 20 elected officers are minority-group members. Many of the drug-store unit's members are

Jewish. Until 1959, the union, which remains a division of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, represented principally drug stora employees. Mr. Davis himself worked in a drug store be-

In 1959, however, 1199 began organizing unskilled hospital workers in New York, who were then earning $26 to $28 a week, and many were on welfare to supplement their paychecks.

It was on organizing effort that labor had shunned, in part because hospital work-ers were poor and could not pay much in dues and in part because the laws were stacked against them. Mr. Davis has twice been jailed for leading bospital strikes, though since 1974 workers in private bospitals have been included in the National Labor Relations Act and their several days. "We don't only produce social and cultural activities," Mr. Foner said, "we produce bread."

-Under the contract that expired June 30, hospital workers had been earning a minimum of $181 a week, a substantial improvement over pre-union days.

However, the union is paying no strike benefits, and it is now preparing material to advise the strikers about applying for welfare and food "We struck for 46 days in 1962 and for 113 days in Charleston, S. C., in 1969," Mr. Foner said. "I'm not predicting that bere, nobody's going to starve us out. Our members obviously are going to be suffering. They knew it before they

"You can't look at the union like it's a place for up-ward mobility into beaven." Mr. Foner said. "Not only do the members feel that this union fights for them, they feel that everyone here fights alongside them." "We like to think that we're different as a union," he said, "not only because some of the things we dn are different but hecause of the real democratic structure of the union.

make policy and that attendance at the meetings averaged better than 1,500 of the 2,700 delegates.

The union runs an extensive array of activities for retired workers, a training program to increase the skills of its members a political action fund supported by voluntary contributions from the workers and a camp scholarship program that this year is sending 400 children to summer camp.

When the union began organizing hospital workers in 1959, two years before the civil rights sit-ins began in the South, Dr. King sounded the keynote for their effort:

"The bospital workers struggle is more than a fight for union rights," he said. "It is part and parcel of the larger fight in our community against discrimination and exploitation, against slums, against juvenile delinquency, against drug addiction against all forms of degrada-tion that result from poverty and human misery."

Symbol and Victim of U.S., Bald Eagle Found in Peril

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP) shells become thin and break—After 200 years of nation-hood, the United States now may be forced to list its national symbol, the bald eagle, as an endangered species—a victim of shooting, pesticides and human intrusion.

The Interior Department announced today that it had proposed listing the hald eagle as endangered in all hut five of the 48 contiguous states, and as "threatened" in those five.

"It is ironic and particularly disturbing to me that at the time of the Bicentennial the living emhodiment of the spirit of America is in such a predicament," said Keith M. Schreiner, associate director of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service.

Fellow Democrats, fellow

Americans. It is with a deeply felt sense of bumility and pride that I stand before you tooight to place in nomination the name of the next President of the United States, Gov. Jimmy Carter.

I hope you will permit me a few personal words. My humility and my pride flow not alone from the happy task I am here to perform, hut also from a deep persooand how I, the son of an Italian immigrant, came to be here. And I know that millions of Americans share my sentiments at this moment. And I am proud too, to belong to a political party whose purpose is the fulfillnent of the American dream. My friends, these are no ordinary times; and in these times we cannot settle for

Mr. Powell, who is also a farm, seems attuned to Mr. Carter's personality.

"On the farm, you just can't let things go," ha said.
"Wheo it's time to plow, you plow or you don't have a crop. When it's time to harvest, you harvest or it's too late. Machinery, seed, live-stock—it's all got to be taken care of, day after day, or you lose it all?" That was the creed that permeated Mr. Carter'a early life in and around the little village of Plains, Ga. He was born there Oct. 1, 1924, the first child of James Earl Carter and Lillion Gordy, both fifth-geogration Georgians.

"Earl was a hustler," recalls Arthur E. Bacon, a neighbor and friend of Mr. Carter's late father. "I mean that in an admiring way. Ho was a man who just never stopped working." Much of that energy was directed toward his farm and the small country store that stood next door to the comfortable Carter home in the tiny community of Archery just three miles from Plains. Most of his father's customers were the black families that made up the hulk of Archery's population. Their survival depended on their williogness to work long and hard for the white landowners and on the elder Mr. Carter's lenient credit Black and white, they worked together in the long hot summers and the hard winters, but as in the rest of the South, blacks and whites in Plains went their separate ways after work. Mr. Carter's father pre-ferred it that way, and he remained a segregationist uotil his death of cancer in religious traditioo that has always coodemned the use of alcohol, he is oot a teetotaler. He enjoya scotch whisky and wine and an occa-

Perhaps the most important momeot of Mr. Carter's campaign came last year when Representative Andrew Young, the black Democrat from Atlanta who had been the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s closest aide, decided to endorse bis candidacy. That brought most of the Still, the problem was there, and Mr. Young's endorsement weot a long way toward its solution. Asked this year if there was one this year if there was one person to whom he could say thanks if he won the Presi-dency, Mr. Carter said, "Yes, just one. Andy Young."

In his campaign, Mr. Carter displayed masterly skill with the English language.
In winning 19 of the 31 primaries this spring, be attracted conservatives and liberals and moderates, those opposed to abortion and those who supported it, rich whites and poor blacks and farmers and factory workers. He drew to his aide such di-verse elements of the Democratic Party as Averell Har-riman of New York and Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago. Wheo Mr. Carter defeated Governor Wallace in the Fiorida primary on March 9, bis position as the most prominent politician of the South was solidified. When he created a major stir with a pub-lic espousal of the "ethnic purity" of oeighborboods, he recouped with a quiet apology and an admission of Similarly, when confronted with his omission of Dr. King's name from speeches before racially conservative audiences, he conceded that he had done it on purpose and promised not to do it again.

Perhaps one of the most revealing moments of his campalgn came on a snowy after-noon in New Hampshire a few days before the natioo's first primary there in late February. Mr. Carter found himself at a Catholic elementary school facing 200 children. There wasn't a vote in the crowd, hut he walked onto the gymnasium floor and smiled.

Senator John Glenn (Keynoter) With that base to build on, the key to restored confidence, to restored control for each of us, to restored freedom, lies in renewed partnership between citizens and their Government.

Now is the time for a bold and responsive Government to forge that partnership:

QA time to recognize that Government has been patronizing the people—talk-ing not over, but under their heads.

And, now, we must put a stop to it, once and for all. . . In 1962, my spaceflight took me from San Diego to Savannab in eight minutes -and on around the world. In spite of all the activity of those moments, I could not belp but look at this country —at our land, at my land I felt so far away from—yet close to—and think how rich and diverse a land ours is. But too often we stress our shortcomings, our divisions, instead of our common blessings. We must be thankful for those blessings. In a speech I gave after the flight,

I closed with these words: "As our knowledge of the universe in which we live increases, may God grant us the wisdom and guidance to use it wisely."

Tonight, I would only repeat that same hope and prayer for wisdom and guid-ance of our people and our nation. We fece great probems, but we also face great and wonderful opportunities. To build a nation, To correct those faults where we have fallen so far short of what we

We can build that nation, and we meet here tonight to select leadership, not only for ourselves, but leadership that will affect the whole world, to select purpose, to select in our time our own challenges to greatness for this convention, for our Democratic Party and for all Americans.

Representative Barbara C. Jordan (Keynoter)

One hundred and forty-four years ago, members of the Democratic Party met for the first time in convention to select their Presidential candidate. Since that time. Democrats have continued to convene once every four years to draft a party platform and nominate a Pres-idential candidate. Our meeting this

There is something different and special about this opening night. I am a kevnote speaker.

In the interesting years suce 1832, it would have been most unusual for any national political party to have asked a Barbara Jordan to make a keynote address-most unusual.

The past notwithstanding, a Barbara Jordan is before you tonight. This, is one additional bit of evidence that the American dream need not forever be

A nation is formed by the willingness of each of us to share in the responsibility for upholding the common good.

A government is invigorated when each of us is willing to participate in the shaping of its future.

In this election year, when we must define the common good and begin again to shape our common future, let each person do his or ber part. If one citizen is unwilling to participate, we all suffer. For the American idea, though shared by all, is realized in each one

Those of us who are public servants must set the example. It is hypocritical for us to exhort the people to fulfill their duty to the Republic if we are derelict in ours. More is required of us than slogans, bandsbakes and press releases. We must hold ourselves strictly accountable.

If we promise, we must deliver. If wepropose, we must produce. If we ask for sacrifice, we must be the first to give. If we make mistakes, we must be willing to admit them.

We must provide the people with a vision of the future that is ettainable. We must strike a balance between the idea that the Government can do everything and the beliaf that tha Government should do nothing.

Let there be no illusions about the difficulty of forming this national community. A apirit of barmony can only survive if esch of us remembers, when bitterness and self-interest seem to prevail, that we share a common destiny. I have confidence that we can form a national community. I have confidence that the Democratic Party can lead the way. We cannot improve on the system of government handed down to us by the founders of the Republic, but we can find new ways to implement that system and to realize

I shall conclude by quoting a Re-publican President and asking you to relate the words of Abraham Lincoln to the concept of a national community in which every last one of us partici-

This Democratic Party has always believed that no challenge is too great for the American nation.

We must muster our strength, our courage, our imagination, our great energy. We can become whatever we want to be.

America is a young country with its future before it. The American people are builders. They are restless. They are energetic. They are idealists who want to put their ideals to the test. America looks to new leaders who can make our country both dynamic and just, who have a sense of compassion, but also a dedication to individual initietive—leaders who can in-spire and are inspired by our history, but who sense that our greatness is in the future.

It was the Democratic Congress that reduced unemployment by two million workers since last year, that cut dou-ble-digit inflation in half, that kept oil and natural gas prices under control, that cut taxes and that brought the Federal budget under control.

Senator Kennedy, who has been staying "with the family" in New York, made his first public address—a short informal talk, but the closest thing to a real speech he has made this week—to a group of about 250 "health-care activists," including convention delegates, at the Americana Hotel last night.

Arthur Levitt, the New York State Comptroller, was able to attend a morning caucus and go to work in Albany before returning for last night's session at the Garden. And local lawyer-delegates, such as Harold Fisher, a member of Governor Carey's inner circle, have been able to wedge in a court appearance or two when the convention doings have flagged.

Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicagn submitted to an in-terview with two 12-year-old convention correspondents from Children's Express, a news sheet put together by youngsters, and soon after some easy opening questions, was asked to comment on the Chicago convention in 1968 and the riots that occurred

"Don't believe everything you hear, dear, ha ha ha," Mr. Daley said. After some more fencing the children per-sisted and asked for his version. But the Mayor declined. "We've got so many things to do today it's more important than talking about ancient history," he said.

The big goal this week is for politicians and politician watchers to get some member of the Carter family to appear in person at business and political events. Thus, Walter Cronkite, the CBS anchor man, was working on coaxing Jimmy Carter's mother Lillian, to appear with him in one of the TV booths that look out on the convention scene like stained-glass windows.

Further from favor, the New York delegation, which offered no great support to Mr. Carter in the primary last April, obtained a visit from a brother-in-law of Mr. Carter at their breakfast caucus yesterday. The man's identity, Robert

Stapleton did not seem to mind. "L married into the family 27 years ago and still can't keep up with it," he creased considerably after the ennui of Tuesday's session, which was devoted to the amurphous business of the party platform. In the Garment District bordering the convention, the ticket passion was described dramatically in terms of Dr. Faustus and Willy Loman, the anti-hero in 'Death of a Salesman."

"They'd give their souls for a ticket," said Bill Tatum, director of the city's Office of Apparel Industry Planning. Some garment execuclothing—samples, nut off-the-rack numbers—in return for tickets, Mr. Tatum said. •

One way of measuring the pecking order at the coovention is to see how the delegates travel between their hotels and the Garden. The advecturous take the subway. One such traveler, enjoyed himself the other night, smoking his cigar as if he were a seasoned New Yorker disdainful of the antismoking code. The rank and file use special buses to get back and forth. The next level of delegates—sort of middling, ac-cording to one official's description — includes former governors and senators who are offered the services of Chevrolets, not limousines.

At the top of the hierarchy are the 380 indoor parking spaces across from the Garden rented by the city for $25,000 and distributed by Robert S. Strauss, the Democratic national chairman. The hist of those so favored includes the principal candidates, state chairmen, city officials down through borough presidents, and a sizable number for security officials, including : 50 spaces needed by the Secret Service.

Simcha Dinitz, the Israeli Ambassador to the United States, elso received one of the small green windshield stickers for the favored few.

More thao the prostitutes and the fear of muggings, the high prices and the traffic jams, it's the bospitality and eagerness to please that the Democrats are finding here this week which dominate the accounts sent back to the rest of the country by the throng of reporters who arrived here with them.

"It's as if New York has made up its mind to overcome all the sins of its past, Iris Kelso reported to the viewers of WDSU-TV in New Orleans last Suoday io a television spot filmed in front of the Plaza Hotel, where she discovered "some of the bell-miracle to a soo of Georgia.

"Just as Jimmy Carter has made this convection a love feast for the first time since the first Franklin Roosevelt cally, "so has our country's greatest city decided to join the country."

The headline over the report declared: "Democrats Find New York City Land of Milk, Hooey." In Tha Detroit News the same day, Clark Hallas wrote, "The Wicked City's reputation for coldness is undeserved." After asserting that Manhattan had "opened its arms" to the delegates, his article veered io another direction, thus illustrating the tendency of even the most gushing account to become a mixed review.

Problem With Prostitutes "Open arms," it seemed, reminded the writer of the city's prostitutes, and be was sooo dwelling oo the expendence of Douglas Fraser, a vice president of the United Automobile Workers, a delegate to the coovention, who, so Tae News reported, "almost didn't make it" Giordano's an Italian restaurant on 39th Street near Ninth Avenue.

But The Seattle Post-intelligence was still prepared to describe Manhattan as "man's most staggering mooument to himself."

A Daugerous Place The idea-that New York is a dangerous place had beeo so deeply ingrained in the minds of most of the delegates it appears, that the city gained points for friend-liness when they discovered that they had not been mugged in the first few hours

The Omaha World Herald reported that the chairman of the Nebraska delegation, Mack Backhaus, bad come to the tity armed with a canis-ter of Chemical Mace. But Celestine Sibley, a columnist for The Atlanta Constitution. reported oo "venturesome fe-male Democrats" who refused to be intimdated by the city's reputation.

"Frightened?" Mary Joan Pepper of Flint, Mich., was quoted as saying "Whatever of New York women have to go to work and shop. How do they manage? I'd he ashamed to be so crayen."

A Cinematic Essay It is the television networks that are giving most Americaos their-impressions of the city this week. For the they are presenting is the New York in which most New Yorkers would still like to believe, a city of glimmer-ing lights and endless human variety, of tough, hard-edged people who are also funny and warm.

This may also be a cliche hut after all, the networks live here, too. And so, in the program that served as an overture to its convention coverage on Simday night, ABC presented a brief cinematic essay on the city of the sort that used to be standard in the musical films, that gave the nation its stereotypes of New York he-fore "The French Connection" and "Taxi Driver."

There was no commentary, just the old Leonard Bernstein tune, "New York, New York," in a recition that was upbeat all the way. When it was done, Harry Reasoner, the ABC anchor man, signed off with a slightly bowdlerized version of the lyrics. "It's still a heck of a town," he said.

'Beauty Shots'

On all three hetworks, the visual monotony of convention coverage from Madison Sociare Garden bas been regularly relieved by what are known to the trade as 'beauty shots' of the city.

Io general, the commentary has been wry and affectionate, as when Jack Perkins of NBC was shown standing outside the Stage Delicates sen oo Seveoth Avenue with a bagel in his hand, explain-ing. This hagel is to New York what grits is for the

Mr. Carter's rise has made but they remain risky, as John Chancellor of NBC discovered last week when he noted that some Southerners were now calling New York "Atlanta North" and commented: "It's the ultimate humiliation." The next night, he had to explain that "obviously" be had not meant to be "critical of Atlanta."

The nearest thiog to harsh comment about the city that was heard io the television coverage this week came after Mayor Beame told the convention on its opening night that a Democratic administration would return the "torch of morality" to

A Mordant Observation: On CBS, Eric Severeid could not resist a mordant observation, "I can't think of any section of any city in American that could stand American that could stand the torch of morality more than this," he said, noting that a "loiter-in" on behalf of prostitutes was occurring a few blocks away from the

A few newspapers across the country took the convention as an occasion for examining the city's maladies.
"The Big Apple is sour," Arthur Wiese wrote in The Hodston Post, Still shiny on the outside but rotting at the

But it was the idea that arrogaot and profligate New York had been so humbled that it now cared about the rest of the country's opinion that remained the week's greatest revelation. Not everyone considered this a sign of health. "What

More of an acid test was the "meet your favorite de-signer" breakfast at Bonwit Teller yesterday, where the conventioneers came under the expert eye of profes-sional Seventh Avenue.

Viewing the sea of 500 women who were sipping champagne with strawberries and eating croissants, Bill Blass remarked: "They look like nice conservative American ladies. They look rather more like Republicans than Democrats."

Mollie Farnis agreed. "I'm agreeably surprised at how well they look. And they're interested in fashion, they've been asking me about skirt lengths and colors for fall." 'They're reasonably wellin a solid way," contributed Kenneth Jay Lane. "They know where their are at this conven-

For Mark Cross, Old-World Charm In a New Setting

Some years ago, a prominent Washingtonian ordered a $14,000 matched set of crocodile luggage from Mark Cross. Before the commission was completed, he asked that plastic covers be made for the cases. His request was unequivocally refused. "I couldn't do it," said Edward Wasserberger, the president of Mark Cross, and standard-bearer of taste and design.

The customer settled for gold papercite, shaped like a fabric covers, although Mr.

Wasserberger still doesn't approve of any cover on beautiful luggage.

The new Mark Cross store, opened this week in the Olympic Tower building (645)

Fifth Avenue), reflects both Mr. Wasserberger's taste, and that of his brother, George, who is executive vice president and the man in charge of interior design and décor.

"I've felt for a long time that the public was tired of chrome and steel," George Wasserherger said. "I wanted to gn back to the Mark Cross

For VIP's The roots reach back to 1845, but the Wasserberger brothers compromised on the Edwardian period, when the store entered its most famous era. Their architect, Ernest Castro, visited the Victoria and Albert Museum in London and, as a result of his research, the new emporium is a blend of Carpathian elm, much of it ambellished with a lyre design, a continental cage-type elevator, now mirrored but soon to be see-through glass, and Art Nou-veau stained-glass skylight

In the Country of Books

By RICHARD R. LINGEMAN

IE VERY RICH HOURS OF ADRIENNE MON-NIER. Translated by Richard McDongell. Illustrated, 536 pages, Charles Scribner's

In 1915, with little experience and only love of literature to commend her, a cung Frenchwoman oamed Adrienne Monir opened a bookshop on Paris's Rue dedeon. Included are her remies of the famous figures who the doorstep of her shop, mainly writers such as Gide, Valery, Claumany others; ber reflections on end literature; travel journals, diaries d remembrances. Together they coma remarkable evocation of a brilliant epoch and a dedicated life.

s Monnier approached the trade of: eller as a lofty calling. As Mr. Mc-ill says, "She practiced her vocation ookseller in a spirit that was almost us, even to the point of adopting a of dress that resembled a habit." She ed to the donkey work of the books life as a "penance" in the religious and she even regarded the everit smile for her customers as analo-"the happy hypocrisy" and "the ad smile" of those in boly orders that. real. With authors one suspects flatteringly worshipful, as well as: ted in their work. But she was no snob, and ordinary customers were treated with the same friendliness. She would chat with them to learn what their tastes were and advised countless serious booklovers on which novelists and poets they should read. .

Her literary idealism extended to various projects such ae the "Ulysses" translation and the publication of a literary magazine called Navire d'Argent' (Silver Sbip, i.e., Paris), which lasted a year. Such projecta as those insured that she would never make a lot of money from her shop; atill, one suspects she was a good businesswoman, and the store survived into the 1950's, when ill health forced her to sell it.

One would like to know a bit more about the kinds of books she stocked, al-though apparently her lofty standards did not exclude current best sellers, and one eseay ahows what a shrewd knowledge she hed of the French reading public. All the same, she ran e highly personal bookshop that catered to "the happy few"—the serious lovers of literature. She had few illusions ahnut the size of this discriminating public, and in an essay called "A Letter to a Young Poet' she says it was "an error to believe that the world owes something to poets; what it owed them it has given them in bestowing inspiration upon them," adding that the poet should he a myatic because "he will then be able, almost as much as a saint, to do without the approbation of the world."

A Blade for Colette

The persistent religiosity of her literary attitudes spills over into her portraits of writer-friends, which are animated with a charity that hordera on piety hut, fortunately, is leavened by a aly, mischievous sense of the eccentricities and posas of the literary profession. Many of the figures she describes will seem obscure to American readers, although Mr. McDougall's notes help. Still, there are aharp-eyed descriptions in plenitude (of T. S. Eliot she says, "His face is handsome and curious: thet of an archangel who has too much to do, and so does only half of it, leaving the rest to the North Wind"). There is a spirited account of a luncheon with Colette, after which, over coffee, Miss Monnier reads the novelist's palm and tells her, "You heve the thumh of a pirate chief," to which Colette replies: "It's true, I'm terribly violent, I've often had the urge to kill, I love knives, blades, not revolvers—they make an absurd noise-no, a silent blade with a fine taper."

Miss Monnier's literary criticism is often astute-as in her analysie of "Ulysses" for French readere, although, again, her religiosity obtrudes and overworks the spiritual front, out of e need to justify Joyce's preoccupation with profane reality. Through all these essays runs a serenity and wisdom, as well as a relaxed appreciation and tolerance of life's diverse manifestations. Above all, there is an unquenchable love for books-"Before books disappear, humankind will disappear. "In an essay on women's reading she summons up a St. Wiborade, whom she says was known as "patroness of bibliophiles." Once when a borde of Hungarian barbarians threatened a monastery, St. Wiborade called to the monks: "Save the books first! Hide them! You can see to the sacred ressels after-ward?" Obviously Adrienne Monnier approved of the saint's sense of priorities.

The Carter Nomination

The nomination to the Presidency of Governor Jimmy Carter of Georgia by the Democratic Party at Madison Square Garden brings to its long-expected climax the most remarkable pre-convention campaign in modern American history.

Certainly there has been nothing like it-a political unknown capturing his party's highest prize-since Wendell Willkie, under totally different circumstances, won the Republican nomination in Philadelphia. Then, it was the emotion of the moment, rolling in on an extraordinary wave of enthusisstic support among rank-andfile Republicans, that pushed Willkie over the top (only to lose to F.D.R.).

But this time, it is the calculated outcome of a carefully planned, methodically fought succession of strategic primary battles that has brought Governor Carter within the past few months from relative obscurity to a well-orcbestrated if emotionless victory.

Governor Carter's achievement is the result of political acuity and organizing skill, of keen intelligence and iron resolve. He knew what he had to do to win the nomination; and with courage, resourcefulness and self-discipline, plus the indispensable support of an amazingly efficient staff-and quite a little bit o' luck-he has achiaved his initial goal.

But while all these factors were essential ingredients in Jimmy Carter's climh in two short years from Atlanta's state house to within reach of the nation's White House, he could not have accomplished his success on these elements alone. While it is true that the nomination is his simply because he won enough delegates in enough primaries and state conventions to ensure last night's overwhelming majority, and while It is also true that the vast hulk of Democratic voters throughout the country played little or no direct part in the selection process—there can be little question that Mr. Carter does in fact represent s broad consensus of opinion among Democrats and Democratic sympathizers today. This is the essence of his victory.

He has managed not only to gain possession of the

As the secretary called the roll of the states last evening for the one and only hallot that made Jimmy Carter the nominee of the Democratic Party, more than one person in Madison Square Garden may have been thinking how events might have produced a different winner if . . .

If the active candidates had actually fought one another to a standstill in the primaries as the conventional wisdom had anticipated, Hubert H. Humphrey might bave received a second call to lead his party.

If a few of those second-place finishes in Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Michigan and elsewhere had only been victories, Morris K. Udall might have heen the nominee.

If the outcome of the Florida primary-Carter, 34 percent, Wallace 31 percent-had heen reversed, the winner might not have gone, on to sweep the other Southern primaries, and George C. Wallace might have been the voice of the South and one of the power brokers of this convention as he had dreamed he would be.

If it had not been for a fatal accident seven years ago this week, the ballot might have marked the beginning of a Kennedy restoration in Washington. If Edmund G. Brown Jr. had entered the race in early March instead of early May, the theme song of this convention might have heen "California, Here I Come." If the delegates had been willing to match their cheers with their votes, Barbara Jordan might have won. If . . . if. . . . If wishes were horses, beggars would ride, the old proverb said. But wishes are not; and last night those who wished that it might have been other-this problem is not fully persuasive. It adopted two of the generally accepted sentencing theories, retribution and deterrence, as the bases for its decision. It went on to say that retribution is appropriate "io an ordered rather than self-help to vindicate their wrongs." We would agree; but the Court failed to demonstrate that long and certain prison terms would not serve "an ordered society" just as well both as retribution and as deterrence. It admitted that existing studies are inconclusive about the value of the death penalty as a deterrent and it did not weigh the retributive impact of decades of ### political middle ground hnt, far more important, to touch a deep and responsive chord among millions of his fellow-Americans who, while weary of tha strifa and conflict of the past decade, still want their country to move steadily ahead in moderation and civility toward the undimmed goals of individual liherty and economic and social justice. Governor Carter's genius in this campaign has been to pre-empt that middle ground while still retaining the confidence both of many liberal activists to the left of him and of large numbers of Democratic conservatives to his right. His strength lies in his ability to obtain the respect, if not the affection, of voters all across the party spectrum.

Yet here could be a source of weakness, too. For while Governor Carter's obvious qualities and his extraordinary faculty in applying them in a positive way to a given situation have earned him the admiration and the votes of Democrats from every economic and social class and every geographic region, he has not yet succeeded in evoking their passionate enthusiasmperhaps because he himself, while possessing intense drive, is a man of almost limitless reserve. The lack of that enthusiasm among many of his supporters could prove serious as the campaign wears on-unless he does something about it.

Nevertheless, Governor Carter's cautiously liberal position, carefully hedged on some issues, and backed by a party platform of the same general cast, seems to us to correspond to the mood and desires of the country in this election year. His impressive personal qualities, hrilliantly highlighted by his swift rise to national preëminence, will be called upon to the fullest in the coming campaign. His appeal, on both a personal and political basis, is broad; how deep remains the question. But his ability to wage an astute and forceful campaign against his prospective Republican opponent is beyond doubt. Almost against their will, the Democrats at Madison Square Garden have come up with their strongest candidate.

'The Only Way'?

Rising tempers on the picket lines and growing tensions within affected hospitals point to serious trouble ahead unless something is done promptly to break an intolerable impasse in negotiations hetween District 1199 of the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees and the League of Voluntary Hospitals and

Binding arbitration is not, in our view, necessarily the best solution to the current hospitals problem—a complex crisis that can only be solved in the long run by direct cooperation between the parties and concessions on both sides. But, as Governor Carey has observed, "if that's the only way" to avert a growing threat to the sick, it's time to call in an arbitrator.

Hospital managers are understandably wary of arbitration hecause of a history of generous awards to the union. In the past, the hospitals have been able to pass on these increased labor costs to the state and the general public through increased Medicaid and Blue Cross reimhursements. In a period of acute fiscal stringency, that is no longer possible, as state and city officials have rightly emphasized.

A responsible arbitrator must point out to both parties that any increases for the workers-a modest cost-ofliving increase has already heen recommended by a Federal hoard of inquiry-can only come from savings generated internally. That means hospital and labor management will have to sit down with each other, and with the new Health Systems Agency, to reform an insupportably wasteful hospital system—described in a recent agency report as "a non-system." If it requires an arhitrator to get that essential process started, let's have one-now!

The Death Penalty

In the death penalty cases decided a few days ago, the Supreme Court was asked whether, at the levels of civilization America had achieved hy 1976, the taking of a human life was not so harsh and cruel as to be an impermissible punishment for the state to inflict. After reflecting on the judgments of a number of state legislatures, the Court decided that under the right circumstances, the death penalty does not violate the Constitu-

In 1972, the Court decided that capital punishment as then applied-"freakish" was the Court's word for itwas unconstitutional hecause the ultimate sanction was applied randomly and unfairly. Subsequently, many states passed new death penalty statutes-some mandatory and some discretionary-in which they attempted to set limits that would meet the objections of the 1972 opinion.

In the latest set of decisions, the Court struck down "mandatory" death penalty laws because, in practice, the sanction was not applied mandatorily. But the Court decided that discretionary laws are constitutional when the legislature has limited the discretion of judges and juries carefully, so that they are required to focus on the crime, the individual, and all of the relevant circumstances in determining sentences. It is apparently the Court's view that when judges and juries have thought carefully about the crime and the accused, a framework of rationality bas been established that is sufficient to justify an official act that destroys a human life.

There is no question that in the wake of the 1972 decision, a majority of the legislatures in the nation expressed a strong view about capital punishment. Thirtyfive of them designed statutes which they hoped would pass the Court's scrutiny. That is clearly an important consideration in judging just what contemporary standards hava coma to be, but it is not necessarily conclusive. The Court's reasoning on the hroader issues raised by society that asks its citizens to rely on legal procedures and 311 of those are black.

Ultimately, the question narrows to whether officially sanctioned death is justified as either an expression of society's moral outrage or as necessary for its protection from those crimes which offend it most. As Anthony Amsterdam, counsel for the N.A.A.C.P. Legal Defense Fund in these cases told the Court, "Death is different."

life is in no way to detract from the desirability of removing society's worst offenders from the community. It is merely to recognize death's finality.

No matter what the defects of the nation's various criminal justice systems may be, they are at least capable of taking offenders who would otherwise be sentenced to

Death Penalty: A 'Brutal Tool' Returns

To the Editor:

The Supreme Court decision that seems likely to result in this oation's first execution since 1967 has done more than just set us back a decade. It is our expectation, documented by considerable date, that the effects of this decision will not only be counterproductive as a deterrent to crime but will profoundly undermine the emotional and psychological well-being of

During the past two years, the American Orthopsychiatric Association, representing professionals in all branches of mental-health and behavioral science, has attempted to synthesize the knowledge of the social sciences on the effects of capital punishment. Our findings are presented in part in the July 1975 issue of the American Journal of Orthopsychiatry and, at greater length, in "Capital Punishment in the United States," edited for the association by Prof. Hugo Bedau of Tufts University and Dr. Chester M. Pierce of Harvard Uni-

The Supreme Court itself noted that the deterrent value of the death penalty has never been established. Our data further suggest that the reinstitution of capital punishment runs counter to the evolving moral standards of the country and fosters s climate in which aggression and violence may be more likely; that it may, in certain suicidal individuals, act as a stimulus to murder, that those crimes we most fear (assault, rape, murder) are those least likely to be deterred by threat of punishment; that the death sentence will be disproportionately applied to racial minorities; that its approval by the Court further sanctions the high level of violence already taught to normal American children by television, news reports and their parents' use of physical punishment, and that, in the words of Dr. Leon Eisenberg of Harvard Medical School, "capital punishment is a treatment indistinguishable from the disease for which it is recommended." The Court has ruled that capital punishment is constitutional, but that does not mean it is good for us. What evidence we have indicates otherwise. Accordingly, we implore legislators, jurists and citizens to approach with cautioo the brutal tool this Court has returned to us; to consider carefully its consequences, and, in the best interests of us all, to disclaim its use. ### 'Whose Sense of Outrage Will Win?'

in the July 8 New York Times, you bave almost a full-page apread about Mary King, calling her a "key Carter hrain-truster" and observing that "outside his family circle, there is probably no woman with more influence on him." She proudly proclaims herself a "moralist-activist" in college, taking part in sit-ins and demonstrations of all types, and has apparently made Mr. Carter change his views on national health care, abortion and E.R.A.

According to the interviewer, "Sha makes points with perfectly manicured hands, glittering with diamond and ruby rings, and looking more like a starlet than a speech writer," although she is the latter, and apparently one of the candidate's most valued ones. Her office (sba is a management consultant) bas become Mr. Carter's campaign beadquarters in Washington.

So Jimmy Carter Is the man the liberals are afrald will be too conservative. God help us.

Miss King claims she "grew up with a seose of outrage." So have many of us. But perhaps our "sense of outrage" is diametrically opposed to the one presented hy this highly moralistic lady. Mine happens to be outrage against hig government, wild over-spending causing giant deficits (such as a national health plan would produce), uncontrolled lawlessness and crime, union power, welfare fraud and any number of other abuses which hit harder at the taxpayer's pocketbook, and mean far more to him, than E.R.A. or abortion.

Well, that's what this election is all about. Whose "sense of outrage" will win out? I suppose as usual the big spending promises will win over even the poor overburdened middle-class taxpayers by making them feel guilty for not being charitable enough. But no more talk about Carter conserv-EVELYN E. WRIGHT Lawrence, L.I., July 9, 1976

Displaced Derelicts To the Editor:

I am a long-time resident of the neighborhood adjacent to Madisoo Square Garden, and I noticed the concerted police effort to reduce the population of winos and derelicts who regularly congregate around the Garden. With all due respect to the winos, and the conventionites who for a short time are displacing them, I say, hail to the police. May God ever forhid those who are running this country from witnessing the way in which some people manage to live in it.

Menaced Freedoms

To the Editor:

An obvious, albeit iodirect, threat to press freedom's seems to be present vis-ô-vis stracks on pornography.

I cannot take issue with your July 1 editorial "Press Freedom Upbeld," in which you hail the Supreme Court for confirming press freedoms hy unanimously striking down a Nehraska gag order. But the editorial does not go far enough ioto threats facing the First Amendment on other froots. Amid completely righteous accolades to the Supreme Court, however, you do refer to but don't identify ". . . new attempts at sileocing the press . . ." I wonder if you could be alluding to the convictions in Federal courts of pornographers whose right to First Amendment guarantees has apparently been awarded less news importance than such direct attacks on press freedoms as the Nebraska gag order case. These porn cases have the same, if not greater significance for the Court's definition of the First Amendment.

If an sctor like Harry Reems, for example, can be convicted in a Federal court for his role in a porn film, and if Al Goldstein, the publisher of a porn newspaper (of which I am a contributing editor) can similarly be found guilty of abusing constitutional freedoms, then everyone's rights under the First Amendment are threatened. Judgmeots on the merits, morality and purpose of the porn business are irrelevant when the unspeakable, potentially devastating ramifications of these cases on the First Amendment are consi-

Even though porn in both the print and film medis may be reprehensible to some, its restriction by the courts nevertheless hrings restriction of oll newspapers, all films and other expressive media frighteningly close. It is impossible to separate the many functions of this most essectial ele-

the rest are necessarily threatened. Thus, cases affecting even the freedom of pornographers are at least as important to the survival of a free press as a ruling on gag orders. It is, again, as important that the public be informed about them.

Our Misnamed Indians

To the Editor:

Is it necessary to continue the mistake of Christopher Columbus in calling the original inhabitants of this country Indians? There is no known historical link between the two peoples, though it is possible that in prehistoric days the original inhabitants of this country might have come from Asia. Columbus called them Indians on his mistaken belief that he had arrived at the Indies, which in fact was his goal. However, the name stuck, though his mistake was discovered when Vasco da Gama arrived in India around the cape only a few years later.

The mistake did not mattar much when this country had few links with the real India, which seemed very far indeed. But now, with India's 600 millioo people and a growing number coming to this country, the same name for both peoples is very confusing indeed. Any newspaper item mentioning Indians has to be read very carefully before one discovers that it is about the original natives and not citizeos of India.

Should we not therefore, in this Bicentennial year, start to call the original American by a distinct name of his own, and not by a very confusing borrowed one? Perhaps native Americans or tribal Americans would describe them much better. S. KAR lost our confidence. If we do not receive an expected answer, or if we anticipale a letter that is delayed, a palpable anxiety fills this void. In times of great disorder this is to be expected. These are times, we are told, of new beginnings. Of all that need to be made none may be more crucial than the proper delivery of the mail. We need the reassurance that something in this country works.

In the Platte Valley of Nebraska, where I was born, the Pony Express early established the notion that the United States mail would be delivered on time. A concrete marker now stands where those intrepid roalimen exchanged houses. In the 1890's, three Rural Free Delivery wagons left Dorrance, Kansas, daily to deliver the mail to isolated farms, undeterred by rain or snow, hail or sleet, blizzards, ankiedeep mud or blowing dust. In my bo hood, twice a day, the postman left a perceptible trail across the lawns that linked both houses and occupants. Some now they found time to deliver more than the mail. More predictable than the weather, the daily mail was a ceremony. Great expectations are gregate quantities of mail we can deliver, on this planet and not a few others, but the letter you dropped in the slot this morning is on its own, and needs all of our blessings. The mailbox I see at the foot of the drive is now the mailpox. Once a comforting reminder of public service, it is now a symbol of frustration. There is not a day we : lack circulars addressed to the occupant, this aggregate concept being large enough to engage the full resources of the mail service. But a letter addressed to you, a postcard addressed to me, is a unique and highly vulnerable slip of paper, which has no business-if we put our minds to it-in that oameless clutter of promotion. We do have a mailing service. It is the first-class service that we lack.

Something Happened

By Anthony Lewis

The press thrives on dispute and disorder, so the 1975 Democratic convention is not going to go down as the journalists' favorite. But there is news of a kind deeper than passing headlines. Anyone who thinks nothing has happened here has forgotten what Sherlock Holmes said about the significance of the dog that did not bark in the night.

This convention, so-bland and orderly in its business, has signaled deeply significant changes in the Democratic Party-and in our political process generally. The very absence of rancor has demonstrated acceptance of ideas that would have been fiercely resisted oot so long ago."

The role of blacks is an evident example. They bave not played the part of tokens, or for that matter of angry outsiders trying to get in. They were in, Black mayors and members of Congress and others have been prominent figures in the proceedings. One, Barbara Jordan, brought the hall to emotional attention for the first time when she spoke.

Among those who stood and cheered Barbara Jordan were many Southern delegates, white and black. We have such short memories that the drama implicit in that scene slipped right by. But in other recent Democratic conventions it took a big struggle, legal and political, to seat blacks in some of those delegations-and the white members did not cheer black speakers. It is oot the millennium; it does not transform the terrible unemployment figures for black young people. But there is a new level of black participation in our politics, and it is accepted almost without ootice.

The South is the best-told story of the convention: the first Deep Southern nominee since the Civil War, and all that. But people still may not realize how profound an effect the nomioation of Jimmy Carter is likely to have oo long-standing political assump-

For decades there bas been an unspokeo regional bargain in the Democratic Party: The South had the dominant influenca in Coogress, holding the leadership positioos and many committee chairmanships, while the Presidential candidate came from the North. Now both parts of that balance are changing. As the seniority rule has. eroded in Congress, Southern dominance there has waned; and a man from Georgia can be the candidate.

Change in the old prejudice and separateoess of the South has made it possible for Jimmy Carter to win, And his commution will reinforce that process of change in a way that may not from now on:

generally recognized. Until now Southern politicians, with no hope of oational office, have naturally played to a regional audience. Now they can aim higher-and bave the best motive to forsake narrow localism.

The 1976 convention also accomplished something that is discussed a good deal but seldom actually happens: the changing of political generations. That is a matter not just of chronological age but of attitudes and Hubert Humphrey made it so clear when he spoke. He was a sectimental favorite, and in the warmth of the reception given him there was a recognition of his long service to the party and so many liberal causes. But after the sentiment came the speech, and there was no way to avoid ooticing that this was a voice from the past.

"We need a Marshall Plan for our cities." Senator Humphrey said. But most of those listening, in the hall and in the country, were not born when the Marsball Plan existed. And those who were could only wince at what has become an empty clicheand, worse than that, a symbol of Federal spendiog programs to which the public has lost confidence.

The needs of the cities are a major focus of the 1976 platform, as they are a desperately important issue in the country. But the challenge to the American political imagination is to find new forms of Federal aid and encouragement, without the bureaucratic deadweight of thousands of categorical graot programs. To hear Hubert Humphrey beat the dead horses of the past was to realize the wisdom of Democratic voters in picking a nomioee without that historical baggage.

Finding a way out of the urban crisis will be exceptionally difficult, but the 1976 Democratic convention may possibly have sent up a hopeful political signal. There was some sense of real sympathy and mutual understanding among regions on the special problems of the older cities of the Northeast.

And there again could be a profound political change. Richard Nixon and his political advisers thought they had a formula for a permanent conservative. majority, based on the South and West. If the gropings for a new enteote among Democrats from Texas and Georgia and New York and Minnesota work out, there could be a very different majority for the oext few years.

The setting of the convention bas been a powerful symbol of all this in itself. Amazingly, New York City turned out to be a bappy choice. The atmosphere of tourist affection will doubtless fade, but it just may be that New York-along with Georgia-will feel a little more a part of the country the populace lined the streets, pointing first to his Musice togs, then to his Glenn bat, next to his Mondale

As usual, the Emperor was not wearing a stitch. Common sense suggests. that Mr. Carter, who has been purposefully running for President for some years now, and who is not a man afflicted by Hamlet's self-doubt, came to New York City with a firm idea in his own mind exactly who his running mate was going to be. A caodid assertion of that decision, of course would have wasted a splen-leadership, dramatically oarrowing down to the Only One. .

> This was an enormous favor to the press, which otherwise would have been all dressed up with no place to go. At least one bone could be gnawed, one element of suspense added: to the clockwork orange. So we all speculated away, and took pictures of Mr. Carter furrowing bis brow, meeting with prospective running mates, looking over applications as if the candidate were indeed seriously weighing alternatives.

At all the bashes of this Cocktail Party Coovention, the reporters covering each other nibbled on the canape the running mate. One irreverent wag went so far as to suggest that Mr. Carter would choose not to have a Vice President at all; if he died in office, ba would simply Rise Again. .

At a small dinner party in the homa of a gracious and momentarily underemployed woman journalist, a couple of Carter's pills complained to an essavist that his sly paralleling of the Nixon staff with the Carter staff was egregiously unfair—that the Carter meo would not go for any of that manipulative stuff.

There is oo great sio in Playing the Game, especially when everybody wants to play. The charade of pretending to decide which man would be choseo was belpful to the candidate, a comfort to a coovention too sheeplike to offer a challenge, and a kind of ofikomen, or token reward, to a press corps that needed something to look for.

In bis memoirs, Mr. Carter will be able to say-in truth-that his "final" decision on a running mate was not made until the night be was nominated. Wa will never really know when he actually made the decision, or ever be able to prove that the subsequent selection minuet was a charade. But tha inherent logic of the situation points to a decision that was made last week. with a panel then balanced to "choose"

At the root of last week's dacision (setting aside the sida charade of saying he wanted the best potential President, or most compatible intellect, which is the usual picking-the-veep pap) is Mr. Carter's estimate of who his opponent will be.

If be bet on Mr. Ford to be his opposition, be would have gone for Senators Walter Moodale or Frank Church, men of the laft; if ba bet on Mr. Reagan, be would baye chosen Senators Henry Jackson or Edmund Muskie; if he could not make up his mind, he would have gone for Senators Adlai Stevenson or John Glenn.

We have all enjoyed the Decision-Making Process, and thank Mr. Carter for the show. But a still, small voice within us asks: Did we see what really happened or did we let ourselves be entertained with a string of bappen-

Wrong Way on Oil...

The Senate Judiciary Committee has sent to the floor of the Senate a bill that would break up the 18 biggest oil . companies. A company would have to decide whether to produce crude oil, transport it, or refine and market . petroleum products. It oo longer could perform all three

The sponsors of the legislation contend that it would lead 10 greater efficiency, a strengthening of independent oil producers and dealers and, ultimately, greater restraint on the priciog power of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

It is bard to see that breaking up the largest American oil companies would lead to any of these results. In fact, divertiture might result in greater costs than benefits to the United States-and to consumers. It might even strengthen . rather than weaken OPEC.

The proposed solution of divestiture is based oo a fallacious theory of the energy crisis—the notion that it was caused by the American oil "monopoly" rather than by the cartel of oil-producing countries. This risks diversing attention from the real problem to a dramatic and emotional nonsolution:

The American oil industry, while no model of perfect competition, is less concentrated than many other American industries. Io petroleum refining—the most coocentrated part of the industry-the largest four companies account for 33 percent of sales; the largest eight companies account for 58 percent, and 20 companies account for 85 percent. These concentration ratios are about average for American industry

Beyond the data oo cooceotratioo ratios, there is much evideoce that the oil companies bave competed vigorously for markets and access to new reserves. The industry's profits have, over the years, also been about average for all American industries. The Arab oil embargo and quintupling of oil prices boosted oil-industry profits in 1974, but they have since come down.

Breaking up the largest oil companies and the loog period of uncertainty through which the industry would have to-pass-would probably caose a major cutback in investment in oew energy resources, both in the United States and abroad (locluding noo-OPEC areas). This would strengthen market domination by OPEC by contracting other sources of supply.

Alternative Remedies

The other means of putting greater pressure on OPEC would be to increase United States conservation of oil products; breaking up the big oil companies would be an irrelevant or counterproductive solution to that problem. A Congress that has been unwilling either to tax fuel more heavily or let bigher prices cut back demand will find no deus ex machina in the splitting of the big oil companies. If divestiture should have the effect of chopping down United : States profits and investment, the impact oo domestic supplies would be orgative. Oil imports into the United States have risen above 6 million barrels a day and oow approach 40 percent of our daily oil consumption. That trend should be reversed.

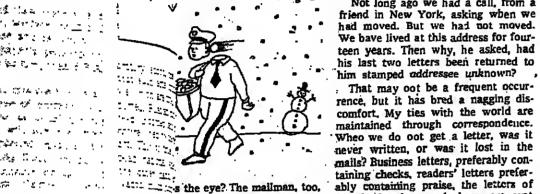

Certain specific conceros about the oil industry call for specific remedies. If oil companies that owo pipeline are in fact discriminating against independent refiners, as some critics have charged, that may be an antitrust violation or an abrogation of their common-cartier responsibilities to be tackled by the Federal Power Commission and the courts. If those remedies fail, Coogress should coosider a divestiture bill specifically targeted oo pipelines. And if gasoline stations are being unfairly treated by the large oil companies, their grievances may call for protective legislatioo.

The oil iodustry is subject to the oatioo's antitrust laws. and those laws should be rigorously applied against any price-fixing or collusion by oil producers. Joint ventures in offsbore lease acquisition, exploration and development drilling, ownership and production from oil and gas leases, pipeline ownership and operation, and international actions and coalitions shauld be scrutinized by Coogress, as well as the antitrust and regulatory authorities, to insure that such joiot vectures are not collusive, discriminatory, or . anticompetitive. :

There are ample means available to the Uoited States Government to prevent mooopolistic practices by oil companies. To use the meat cleaver of divestiture would risk cutting back our own oil supply for the presumed purpose of spiting OPEC. Such a policy makes oo sense at all.

There are converse situations where the Government's mactivity results not in a prohibition but in a permission. On Dec. 2, 1878, in an article the day after the auction. The New York Times reported that "The neat little building known as the Medical Department, which spanned the creek in the ravine back of the judges' hall, was sold to Mr. Henry Yard of Ocean Beach, N.J., who intends to remove it to the new summer

Ocean Beach is now the Town of Belmar ebout 50 miles south of New York. The "neat little building" became the second floor of the Brunswick Hotel, a landmark in the area. The main floor of tha Brunswick apparently waa fashioned from parts of another building Mr. Yard bought io Philadelphia, the Globe

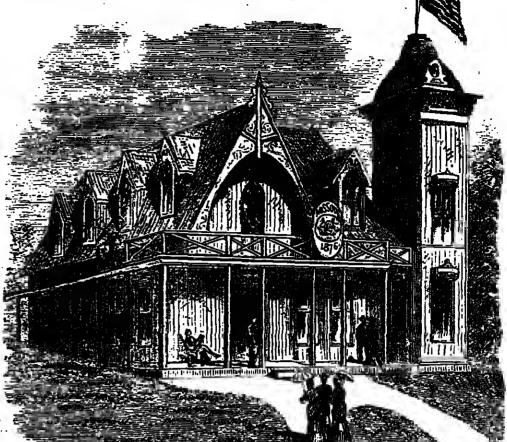

The Globe actually stood outside the Ceotennial grounds. It was made to be knocked down easily when the exposition closed.

The Missouri House, on Pennsylvania Avenue, is one of the few known survivors among the state buildings at the Centennial Exposition. An extra floor was added on at some point but the distinctive tower, the long porch and the "M"s carved in the shutters are almost exactly the same as they appear in pictures made in Philadelphia 100

The building was purchased by a Charles Dillingham of Brooklyn for $600 and transported to Spring Lake by flat car. Actually, the area where the Missouri House is situated was a separate municipality for many years known as Villa Park.

A few yards away was the New Hampshire House. Whila the Missouri House has been a hotel or rooming hoose for many years—with many owners—the New Hampshire House was a privete bome. It burned down several

The Portuguese building was never sup-posed to come to Spring Lake. It was pur-chased at the auction by a Methodist minister. He intended to set it up in Ocean Grove, which was just getting started in 1876 as a

God-fearing community where the pious could flee the sinful excesses of Asbury Park, the next town to the north. (Asbury Park had been founded as a God-fearing community where pious people could flee the sinful excesses of Long Branch.)

The minister could find no room for his huilding in Ocean Grove. He sold it to someone who put it up In Spring Lake instead.

The Major Events of the Day

Democratic Convention Jimmy Carter of Georgia won the Democratic Presidential nomination on the first ballot. By an overwhelming margin, the convention ratified Mr. Carter's startling electoral ascendancy of the last six months, making him the first major-party nominee from the Deep South since Zachary Taylor in 1848 and installing him as the early favorite to capture the White House in November. [Page I, Columns 1-8.]

Mr. Carter indicated he had made his choice of a vice-presidential running mate hut took elaborate precautions to prevent disclosure before today. Senator Walter F. Mondale's name was most frequently men-tioned by members of the Carter circle, but there was also informed betting on Senator Edmund S. Muskle. [1:4.] Organized labor is staging a comeback in Madison Square Garden after losing much of its political effectiveness in the Democratic convention of 1972. But the voices of George Meany and the old-line A.F.L.-C.I.O. unions no longer dominate. More than two-thirds of the 550 to 600 delegates who are union members are the product of an independent drive hy a coalition of eight unions that de-cided to end their risky reliance on a single labor backed Presidential candidate. Many of the 418 Labor Coalition Clearinghouse delegates were chosen under the banner of finning Carter but others as backers of Representative Morris K. Udali and Senator Henry M. Jackson. One of the coalition leaders, Leonard Woodcock of the United Automobile Workers, announced after a meeting with Mr. Carter that they favored Senator Mondale for Vice President but would be very comfortable with Senator Muskie. [1:5.]

Interviewed in his Americana Hotel suite with nomination only 12 hours ahead, Mr. Carter seemed caim. He said he would inform the winner and five losers of the Vice-Presidential selection this morning by telephone a few minutes before making the announcement at a news conference. [1:6-7.]

International

The United Nations Security Council ended four days of inconclusive debate on Israel's rescue of hijacked hostages in Uganda without condemning the Israeli raid or approving a rival resolution against hijacking and terrorism. African members withdrew a resolution to condemn Israel in the absence of the nine votes needed to carry it and with the prospect of a United Stttes veto. The British-American resolution received only six votes. [1:1.] An unidentified United States ambassador solicited from the Aluminum Company of America at least $25,000 that was paid to officials and political parties of a foreign country, according to papers filed by the company with the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington. The incident oc-curred in 1971 or 1972. The country was not identified but was one of 13 in which the company did a substantial businesa, a spokesman said. [1:2-3.]

Informed sources in Montreal reported a plan under preparation with strong United States support for Taiwan to take part in the Olympic Games. The five-member dalezation would march as the Republic of China under its national flag, but the marchers would be accredited delegates already inside Canada. The sources said if Canada persisted in barring Taiwan, the United States was prepared to pull its 425-member squad out of the games. [1:2.]

Blacks in South Africa are often forced hy financial bardship to drop out of their optional school system, which is vastly inferior to the separate system for whites that is compulsory for those aged 6 to 16. The outlay for each white student will be 17 times more than for a black student starting next January, and despite a growing budget for hlack education the gap between the two systems has been widening. [1:1-2.]

Metropolitan

The nine senior colleges of City University have begun sending dismissal notices to tennred faculty members after a frenzied year of trying to retrench without affecting the joh security of senior professors. Officials at City, Brooklyn and Queens Colleges confirmed that to meet mandated budget cuts for the coming year, they planned to dismiss a total of 921 full-time faculty members including 49 to 58 with tenure. The invasion of the academically sacred area drew a statement from the president of the Professional Slaff Congress that the faculty union would file a class action suit to block the dismissals. The delegates showed interest in guided tours of Brooklyn Heights, Chinatown, the Lower East Side and Little Italy, provided by professionals such as Gray Lines and Short Line, and by amateurs such as the Florida host, Dan Rose, who chartered a bus and bad city commissioners be the spielers.

A group of people from Michigan took the subway from the New York Hilton acress to the Roosevelt Island tramway and the tram ride, because they wanted to see the island in the city.

'Hospitality Moved North' For Vicki Spence, New York's welcome to the delegates has been a simple case "Southern hospitality moved north," and as she sat in Lord & Taylor's hospitality suite, drinking coffee and rubbing her tired feet, she talked of the warmth of the city and how all the delegates had been guests in private homes at parties where New York volunteers were the hosts.

Herbert Mabry, a fellow Georgiao, stood atop the Empire State observation deck, looked out toward Queens and said that he had been a member of site selection committee for the convention, "and I'm oot sorry a bit we picked New York."

Gov. Marvin Mandel, of Maryland, having a fine time in Joe's Pier 52 the other night with Representative Charles B. Rangel of Manhattan, filched two Big Apple lapel pins from the restaurant's night manager. State Senator Richard Schneller of Connecticut, a guest of Gov. Ella T. Grasso. saw several shows including "A Checus Line," and his wife, Nancy, spent a whole afternron at Borwit Teller and Bergdorf Goodman's.

"There are so many soles," she said. Thomas Baer of the citizens committee for the convention said that women delegates and wives of other delegates wanted very much to visit dress manufacturers, because "women really think of us as the feshion center of the country." And so a group of Georgia delegates went to Cloria Vanderbilt's dress house on Fashion Avenue and looked at models and the buyers.

Questions by Delegates "Should we go to Orsini's?" asked an Oregon delegate. and the reply from a host was: "Perbaps. How much did you want to spend?"
A hostess. Marsha Warner, said: "They ask for Chinese restaurants, and small ones in the victiny of their hotels. What we have to do is tell them whether they'd be better off going three or four blocks further to get better valuee." And so the Florida host, Dan Rose, recommended in the tiny daily news-paper be published for his people each day a local steak

Fred Weideman, 71 years old, from Dearborn, Mich., whose wife, Elizabeth, at 72, is the oldest Michigan delegate, made all "those ethnic tours," because "I want to see this melting pot they talk about here." And Lyndelle Lay and his wife, Bernice, who is a delegate from Little Rock, Ark., have been touring the city in buses and shopping in Saks Fifth Avenue so often, she said, "We've haven't even been out to dinner yet."

Many of the delegates have been making concerted efforts to attend political cock-tail parties and receptions where they can snack. Few of them have been going to the city's more expensive restaurants, preferring snack shops and sandwiches For shops and sandwiches. For instance, they will visit the Statue of Liberty, then go immediately to the World Trade Center observation deck, forgoing the moderately expensive Windows on the World sive Windows on the World Restaurant for the ground floor snack shops.

"Most of them have paid for their own hotel rooms," Mrs. Warner said. "They're using their summer vacation money. Frankly they're looking for a bargain.

Herbert Mabry of Atlanta took wife and son to Empire State Building: Avern Cohen, busband of a Michigan delegate, rode subway with Winifred Fraser, the wife of an auto workers official; Vicki Spence, an alternate delegate from Georgia, toured Lord & Taylor.

Queens Man Guilty in Slaying

A 29-year-old man has been convicted in Mineola, L.L. in the fatal shooting last fall of a Nassau County police officer who was investigating a burglary at a restaurant in West Hemostead. The jury of 11 men and one woman deliberated for two days before convicting John Mackenzie, formerly of Whitestone, Queens, of first-degree manslaughter, felony murder and burglary. The police officer, Matthew Giglio, 35, was shot once in the abdomeo last Oct. 7, and died 10 weeks later. He was an 11-year veteran of the police force.

Man, 24, Burns to Death in Bronx Fire

A 24-year-old man was burned to death as he tried to escape from a fire on the second floor of a two-family house at 858 Manida Street, in the Hunts Point section of the Bronx. A Fire Department spokesman identified the victim as Virgil Sims, whose body was found in a rear bedroom of the two-story brick house. The fire started in a second-floor kitchen and quickly spread to the rest of the floor, causing extensive damage, the spokesman said. The fire, bowever, did not spread to the first floor. The fire started shortly before 7 A.M. and was reported under control 15 minutes later.

Jersey Air Held Free of Cancer Agent

Preliminary tests show New Jersey's air is free of a potent cancer-causing agent, according to the Federal Environmental Protection Agency. John Bachmann, an E.P.A. environmental engineer, said in Washington that three days of testing at 13 North Jersey sites had turned up no detectable levels of nitrousamines, formed by the combination of nitrogen oxide and amines. Since nitrogen oxides are present in automobile exhaust fumes and amines occur naturally in humans, the substances were suspected of being a major contributor to the state's bigh cancer rate. Mr. Bachmao said the tests were conducted in mid-June during average-to-good weather conditions.

Anti-Hitching Drive Renewed

Two youngsters have been killed in New York City so far this year and five others injured by the pracice of climbing onto the rear of buses from the outside and hanging on for a ride. The figures for the first six months of 1976 were announced by the Transit Authority as it renewed its periodic drive to discourage the practice. In 1973, there were 10 deaths and 82 injuries in hitching accideots, the following year five deaths and 56 injuries and last year four deaths and 40 injuries.

Mr. Bassik, described by the police as deeply in debt, was identified as an employee of Paul's father. Irving, who op-erates the Pinkham Insurance Ageocy at 192-40 Hillside Avenue, Jamalca, Queens.

According to the police, the kidnapper had blindfolded the boy and driven him around all night, making a succession of stops while he placed a series of calls to the Frieder home demanding $100,000 for the boy's safe return.

It was not until 5 A.M., the police said, that the abductor checked into the motel with the boy, who was later left asleep blindfolded on a bed, while the man went out—appareotly to attend his grandmother's funeral.

It was then, the police said, that Paul woke up, realized he was alone and found the phone the kidnapper had hidden under a bed and placed a cal to the motel's switchboard operator, who swiftly notified the police. ## American Moderns Fail to Stir Tokyo

Masahiko Maeda, an art student, and Keiko Fujita, who is studying singing, view "Tha Betrothal Second" by Arshile Gorky at the exhibition, "Three Decades of American Art," sponsored by the Whitney Museum of American Art.

TOKYO, July I3 - New York City's Whitney Museum of American Art is staging its first overseas exhibition here with indications that the Japanese are perhaps not quite ready to appreciate fully modern American art.

The exhibition - "Three Decades of American Art"features 52 American art works by Jackson Pollock, Arshile Gorky, Willem de Kooning, Andy Warbol and others.

The show, opened oo June 2. 18, in an unusual setting for such American art-a Japanese department store in downtown Tokyo. It is scheduled to close next Tuesday.

The show is cospoosored and subsidized by the Seibu Department Store Art Gal-lery and Asahi Shimbun, Japan's largest-circulation daily newspaper.

Enlightenment Is Aim

The last major American art show here was presented by the American Abstract Artists Association in 1954-55.

But the recent exhibition has attracted fewer than a thousand visitors a daymostly students, young designers, poets and musicians as opposed to the 15,000 who viewed a European art show in the same store recently, Tickets cost $1.70,

"We had not expected a big audience anyway." said Tatsushi Oda, a spokesman

Můch Gibberish By Irwin Corey At Playboy Club

By RICHARD F. SHEPARD

When in the course of hu-manly stultifying agendas it superfluously behooves us to root out the unadorned ornately plain-speaking respite —well, anyway, who is to compare with Irwin Corey? Not even convention orators.

Mr. Corey, who moved into the New York Playboy Club Tuesday evening and will be there through July 25, is the verbose and discombobulated thunderer who does with words what traneze artists do with soace. He swings through them, hangs by his heels, makes absolutely no sense and always lands on his feet and leaves you laughing.

His linguistic calisthenics, abetted by mugging that would seem forced on another face, is done out of a short, thin body clad in an aged frock coat, baggy pants and a string tie. His manner is that of an overbearing pedant and he spouts his nonsense with an utter conviction that cows the listener into belief.
But let them man speak for himself, although the transcript suffers in translation:

"We all know that protocnl takes precedence over pro-cedure." He intones this with particular piety, whatever it

"These are but a few minutes of respite set aside as an interval while you meditate on what went on before." (How's that again?—No. I'm sure it's copied correctly.)
"New York, where the po-litical view blightens the eye

. . . has more people per capita than any other city of rhe same size with the same per capita."

However, he can be seri-ous, as when he solentaly re-calls John Foster Dulles's ascending the mount and pro-claiming, "The future lies ahead." Or did he?

Mr. Corey makes frequent references to current politics and candidates, but the ones that lingered on the ear are too ripe for print, perhaps, although they run off at the mouth. His thrusts, which have the elusive quality of a lackhammer, land on doctors, foreign policy, sex, almost anything. He also treats questions from the floorcontempt. He is good to have modern art has not taken root yet in this country. To most Japanese, art generally means European classic art."

So the purpose of the show was, as Mr. Oda put it, to "enlighten" people, rather than to appease their appetites.

School textbooks here rarely carry a paragraph on American art. Very few galleries, among literally thousands in Tokyo, handle ab-stract paintings, Japanese artists, when going abroad to study, have rarely choseo the United States. Even lovers of contemorary art here usually prefer Chagall and Dali to the more abstract Pollock and Gorky.

Differences Stressed Mr. Oda attributes this to the assimiliation of art in Japao, a country that has its own distinctive art tradi-tions and which until 108 years ago was clused to Western influences, Once its ports were open to the world. Japan accepted some Western ways in the styles of its first teachers. Thus, for instance, the legal system has a strong French flavor to it, while ballet in Japan was heavily influenced by Russian styles.

Likewise, Western art in Japan is synonymous with traditional European art. This, said Mr. Oda, also can be attributed in part to such things as housing styles.

He noted that to someone for the gallery, because as many Japanese do, a paintiog has been something to put on the walls of the guest room or living room with a

His impression of modern American art, after walking up and down in the gallery, was that American art was "grandiose," while Japanese rt was "dexterous."

De Konoing Impresses

Mr. Maeda said be respected Arshile Gorky, but his other favorites among the exhibits were "Ocean Park No. 43" by Richard Diebenkorn. "Grand Cairo" by Frank Stella and "Song" by Kenneth Nolan.

He was also impressed that he was able to see in Japan the early pieces by Willem de Kooning, which he thought would cost more than $300,-

000 apiece. His friend, Keiko Fujita, living in a tiny wooden house, who is studying to be a singer, said that she didn't understand modern art, but thought that "Studio" Jasper Johns and Betrothal Second" by Gorky were beautiful.

"I can sense in works the vitality that would digest anything," said Tomo-take Takeishi, a young sculptor who frequents the gal-lery often because it emphasizes modern art shows. Early this year he saw the exhibition of Wassily Kandinsky, a Russian-born pioneer of modern paioting.

Like many other department stores in Japan, the Seibu store here has its own art gallery, plus a play-ground on the roof, a theater and other cultural and recreational facilities. In Ja-pan, a department store is oot only a place to shop, but a community gathering spot where couples and families can enjoy their free time.

At the Seibu Art Gallery, the owner, Seiji Tsutsumi, who is a poet as well as department-store owner, has put more emphasis on modern art.

Though a classic Rodin show will follow this modern American art exhibition, the gallery will then return to its main theme-the introduction of less-well-known modern artists. Soon. It will feature the Spanish abstract painter Antonio Tapies.

It's junk like "Tunnelvision" that make one appreciate the mad inspirations of Alan Abel ("Is There Sex After Death?"), the master of a kind of bumor often labeled "undergraduate," though its irreverence and fondness for terrible gags can be as liberating as any other kind of humor. She probably has more technique in her elbow than Margot Fonteyn ever faotasized for her ankle. But it doesn't, just at present, quite work. On Tuesday night Miss Morishita made her New York debut, with American Ballet Theater, in the New York State Theater at Lincoln Center, in the leading role of Natalia Makarova's staging of "La Bayadère," that peculiar touchstone of ballet's Rohar touchstone of ballet's Romantic-Classicism. She was partnered by Ivan Nagy. In e way too well partnered. He supported her splendidly, but in his dancing he showed just what she lacked. It could be called soul, it could be called passion, it could even be called expertise. And the latter is why Miss Morishita

It is a full evening. It includes "Dances at a Gathering," "In the Night," and "Other Dances." In the middle of the proceedings—there can be no intermission—the company dances Fokine's "Les Sylphides," to the piano, in costumes by either Joc Eula or Santo Loquasto. The ensemble is a mixture of the world. Some solos are re-peated with different dancers. It goes on and on. Possibly all night. And it is a reaffirmation of ballet's heroic spirit. Mr. Robbins should really think about it. I would even buy a ticket.

mained mostly bare throughout except for the force and anvil of the opening scene. But the backgrounds-such as the forest in Act II—ap-proach realism. There even were the requisite bear (a most reluctant beast, dragged in by Siegfried) and the dragon that the hero despatches in Act II.

The feeling was inescapable, however, that Mr. Rennert is asbamed of the Wagnert is asbamed of the Wag-nerian meneagerie. The dra-goo was not really a dragon, but the same octopoidal bug-eyed monster from outer space that Alberich briefly inhabited in "Rheingold." Even here Mr. Rennert came up with a new wrinkle. As soon as Siegfried plunged the sword in Fafner's breast, the mooster disappeared and a dying Fafner himself took its place. No great harm was done to Wagner's intentions, and some might even say the original conception has been improved But the haste with which Mr. Rennert got rid of the monster shows bow much more rooted he is in the 20th than in the. 19th century.

As usual in present-day Wagner performances and especially "Ring" perform-ances, the best singlog came from the subsidiary members of the cast. The two princi-pals, Siegfried and Brünnhilde (in many respects it is her opera, even if she ap-pears only the last 20 mioutes of the last act), were veterans who were not really up to the vocal demands. Neither Jean Cox nor Ingrid Bjoner had the soaring line and amplitude of voice to make the pulses race. They also were guilty of some remarkably old-fashioned posturing and emoting. That was a surprise. Mr. Rennert's di-rection so far had all but was underiably coarse.

eliminated that. This "Ring" cycle has consistency, in that the same reople are retained for all four operas. Thus Gerhard Unger again was the Mime, Leif Roar the Wotan, Klaus Hirte the Alberich, Karl Christian Kohn the Fafner and Ortrun Wenkel the Erda. Janet Perry sang the Volce of the Forest Bird. "We can have e team and join the competition," he said. "We came to take part, not necessarily to win enything. And these five people came into the country legally."

The Taiwanese proposal will be relayed by the LO.C. to Prime Minister Trudeau's Government through the Can adian Olympic Organizing Committee. That committee, called COJO, reportedly is backing the effort fully. The LO.C. made no official statement tonight when it adjourned at 8 P.M. after five hours of deliberation. The seriousness of the confrontation was underscored earlier in the day when the LO.C. first delayed and then canceled its morning session. While the full membership stood by, the organization's nine-member executive com-mittee conferred with Taiwaspokesman, Monique Ber-lioux, confirmed that the I.O.C. was "trying herd" to have the accredited Taiwanese take part in the Games.

Ironically, the latest and potentially gravest threat to the Games developed the day after the flame for the 21st Olympiad was lighted by the rays of the sun on the stepa of e temple in Ancient Olympia, Greece. After being carried by 550 relay runners to Athens, it will be transmitted almost instantaneously by satellite tomorrow to Ottawa. Thus, it will arrive in the Canadian capital for relay to Olympic Stadium in Montreal on the same day as the I.O.C. request on Taiwan. Philip Krumm, president of the United States Olympic Committee, confirmed later that an American pullout was "under consideration." How-ever, he said no decision would be made for 24 hours. A majority of the American athletes has arrived at OlymPresident has no authority over the country's Olympic delegation.

A compromise plan pro-posed by the I.O.C., headed by Lord Killanin, would have permitted the entire Taiwanese team to compete under the Olympic flag and use the Olympic hymn as an anthem.

Taiwan, recognized by the I.O.C. as the Republic of Chine, rejected the compromise. It has ergued that this is the first time in Olympic history that athletes have been prevented from entering a country to compete. The yachtsmen have been in the country two weeks. During that time, they have worn their plastic identificatinn dog taga at the main Olympic Village and the yachting center in Kingston. Ontario, 180, miles to the southwest of Lake Ontario.

"These people must he allowed to compete," a source close to the negotiations said.

The accredited group includes only three actual competitors: Kui Lim and his younger brother Yal, who are scheduled to sail in the 470 Class of the Olympic yacht-ing competition, and Thomas Hauch, the 40-year-old sailing captain and alterate crew-and his brother 19. The other two members who come un-der the broad definition of "ethlete" are Lin Foo, 42, the sailing coach, and Ling Won, the team's woman meteorolo-

"We're just sitting here waiting," Hsueb said et the Queeo Elizabeth Hotel, where the LO.C. stays and holds its major meetings. "Nobody has told us not to wait. All I know is, we're fully accreditated and we want to participate ed and we want to participate all the way."

Hsuch declined comment on the letest Teiwanese strategy, saying only that "we're pulling out of the ming, president of the Repub-lic of China Olympic Committee, and Lawrence S. Ting. vice president of the committee and chief of the Taiwanese delegation.

"My own feeling," said Hsu, "is that we have to stay in the Games according to the rules. If your name is John Jones and you get an invitation to a party under the name of Bill Smith, would you go to the party? The rules say we should parade under the name designated by the I.O.C. That name is Republic of China."

The threat of an American pullout, remote as it might turn out to be, apparently was influencing the 1.O.C. deliberations. In the event the United States went home, ABC-TV would be contractually entitled to cancel its multimillion-dollar obligation.

The network paid more than $25 million for rights to televise the Games. Loss of its share of that revenue would leave the LO.C. vir-

These Reds Appeal to the President

PHILADELPHIA, July 14—In his miniature Cincinnati Reds' uniform with "14" and "Rose" on the back, 6-year-old Pete Rose Jr. was twirling a bat near his father's locker in the National League clubbouse after the All-Star Game when somebody asked him what he thought of the American League team.

"They're good," he said, "but the Reds always win." From the mouths of babes, Any confusion between the Reds and the Netional Leagua All-Stars is understandable. In the 7-1 victory Tuesday night under the gaze of President Ford, members of the world champion Reds drove in four runs, of The Times scored four and produced seven of the Na-tional League's 10 hits. Pete Rose's leadoff singla sparked a two-run first inning. George. Foster's two-run homer put the National League in com-mand, 4-0, in the third. Ken Griffey's two-out run-scoring single enabled Cesar Cedeno, an intruder from the Houston Astros, to add a two-run homer in the eighth.

And so the National League, alias the Cincinnati Reds.

won the All-Star Game for the fifth consecutive year and the 13th time in the last 14 games. It's not an accident. "You go down the rosters," Pete Rose was saying, "and when you get to the substitutes, we got some tremendous playars."

Not Much A. L. Power

That's a diplomatic way of saying that the National League has more depth in talent. And this time, the Netional League also had tremendous depth in power. Of the American League's five leading home-run hitters, only Carl Yastrzemski was on the All-Star squad. Yaz is third with 16 homers. None of the other leaders were elected or named-Sai Bando, George Hendrick, Lee May and Jim Rice-and such sluggers as Reggie Jackson, Joe Rudi and John Mayberry are having, for them off years.

"I didn't have my good fastball," said John (The Count) Montefusco, the National League's answer to Mark Fidrych, "but I didn't need it against the American League." Home runs often dominate the All-Star Game, as Foster's and Cedeno's did. In their batting order, the American League had some exceptional hitters, such as Rod Carew and George Brett, but few power hitters despite Fred Lynn's bomer. . "Next year," said John Montefusco, "they should split up the National League team and forget about the American

"They should let the American League play Montreal

next year," The Count said. "No, let them play San Fran-Before the game, when President Ford visited each clubbouse, The Count had asked him for "Federal aid for a disastrous team," meaning the Giants. Perhaps more than most of the National League players, The Count appreciated what the Reds meant to the victory.

"Bench, Perez, Rose, Morgan, they get you up," The Count said. 'They're winners."

With his contribution to the National League cause The Count had upstaged The Bird. Fidrych came in here with a 9-an-2-record and a 1.78 earned-run average, I bad a 7-and-8 record, I had to keep my mouth shut," The Count said. "If I were 16 and 3 like Randy Jones is, I'd have heally popped off. The Bird told me that if the National League won, he'd blow up my car. I'd better keep it in the garage. I'm only kidding — but I don't know about him, be's a little weird."

Discussing Cedeno's Hands

President Ford enjoyed The Bird and The Count, but most of all he seemed to enjoy how the Reds play baseball. "When Morgan and Concepcion made that slick double play in the first inning," Joe Garagiola recalled, "the Presi-dent said, 'No wonder they're in first place.' He knows

The President had requested that the inimitable NBC sportscaster accompany him on Air Force One to and from the All-Star Game. "I think the most excited the President got was when Pete Rose slid bead first into third hase on his triple," Joe Garagiola said. "You know he'a a fan when be appreciates Ernie Banks, the Hall of Fame slugger from the Chicago Cubs, also was in the Presidential party. And after Cedeoo struck out in the sixth, Banks criticized his batting form.

When the Astro outfielder came up in the eighth, Banks mentioned it again. "His hands do look a little high," the President agreed.

"He holds his hands too high," Banks said.

"You guys are trying to make a broadcaster out of him," Joe Garagiola said. "He's not up there posing for a "But his hands are too high," Banks repeated. Moments later Cedeno bit his two-run homer.

"If he listened to you guys," Joe Garagiole said, "he'd be going to air-conditioning school." Everybody laughed. And later, Joe Garagiola thanked the President for inviting him along. "This is the greatest year," Joe Geragiole said, "that

Pate in Field for $300,000 Westchester Classic Today

Special to The New York Times HARRISON, N.Y., July 14 -Jerry Pale's first Profes-Gelfers' Association tournament as a pro was the 1975 Westchester Classic, Although he was the 1974 United States amateur champion, fans "Who's he?" fans were asking Pate will tea off tomorrow: along with 167 other profes-sicnals in the 10th Westchester Classic and fans this year will be saying, "Oh, there's Jerry Pale, the United States Open champion."

They also will be saying, There are Gary [Player] Jack [Nicklaus] and over there are Johnoy Miller and Tom We'skcpf. And, look, isn't that Cene Littler, who won this last year, when he beat Julius [Boros] in a playoff? There's Julius, and Arnie [Palmcr] himself."

All those pros and many other well-known players will tee eff at the Westchester Country Club because the $300,000 Westchester Classic is the second of the two designated tournaments on the P.G.A. circuit this year. The first was the Tourna-

By GORDON S. WHITE Jr. ment Players Championship. which was won by Nicklaus in February.

Most of the ores are eager to be here for the 72-hale Classic because the purse has been increased and the first prize is $60,000.

Pate, the 22-year-old who wen the United States Open in Atlanta last month, played in the preliminary pro-amalcut event today shooting "a 75, I think.".

Pate Needed Money

Remembering the 1975 Westchester Classic as if it were only yesterday. Pate said, "I just wanted to play well and make some money.

I needed money because I had just borrowed some and had been playing in Europe, where I didn't make much. Pate, who was second to Weiskopf after the first round at Westchester last year, finished tied for 18th place and earned $3,250. The really something." He is now 15th on the 1976 P.G.A. money list with $88,- United States Open champion said today, "Three thousand dollars to a 21-year-old is 482. And that's really something for a 22-year-old.

Player, who said, "I haven't been playing worth a damn in the last month," had an amazing round of 33,33-66 today, hitting each of the 18 greens in regulation figures.

"You don't have many rounds when you do that," Player said. "You know, I ex-permiment a lot and I just made a hig change in my swing. I've gone to a onepiece take-away. I had been using an early break."

Palmer gave his "Army" a thrill today by shooting 33,32-65 over the course, which is listed at 6,603 yards.

Arnie won the 1971 Westchester Classic and has taken only one individual P.G.A. victory since — the 1973 Bob Hope Classic.

Palmer, Pate and Miller Barber make up a threesome that will tce off at the 10th hole tomorrow at 12:54 P.M. All Ex-Winners Present

All of the former winners of this tournament will compete here tomorrow. In addition to Palmer and Littler there will be Nicklaus, who won the first Classic in 1967 and the sixth in 1972; Boros, 1968; Frank Beard, 1969; Bruce Crampton, 1970; Boboy Nichols, 1973, and Miller, the 1974 winner, who has just returned after capturing the British Open last week. Nicklaus, Crampton, Müler and Livier are among the 31 designated players for 1976 and must play in this tourney Palmer, Beard and Boros not qualify as designated players this year.

Some of the leading geliers and their tee times tomorrow: Weiskopf, 8:02 A.M.; Hale Irwin, 8:18; Nicklaus, 8:26; Crampton, 8:42; Player, 1:18 P.M.: Hubert Green and Ben Crenshaw, 1:26; Littler,

Barenaba Gains in Public Links Golf

COON RAPIDS, Minn., July 14 (AP)-Randy Barenaba's game revived just in time today for a victory in the opening round of match play at the United States Public Links golf championship. However, Jeff Thomas, the medal winner, was among several favorites who were beaten.

Barenaba, the 19-year-old defender from Hawaii, edged Robert Holdstein of Woodbury, N.J., on the 20th hole when Holdstein hit his drive out of bounds. Thomas, 25, of Boise, Idaho, had scored 69, 71-140 on the par-72 Coon Rapids Municipal Course in the qualifying Monday and yesterday but he lost to Frank Sexton of Barboursville, W.Va., 2 and 1.

Two more 18-hole matches will be played tomorrow to cut the remaining 32 players to cight. Quarterfinals and semifinals are Friday, and the 36-hole final is Saturday at the 6,670-yard Coon Rapids layout.

Ed Schuler, a little white-haired man, played Yankee Doodle Dandy yesterday on the horn of his 1914 Dodge. The time attracted a big crowd in front of the Plaza Hotel as it had done through-ont Europe. Schuler's green Dodge, a firs-engine red 1912 Abbott, a blue 1909 Franklin and a blue 1911 Model T Ford, all Museum cars, had returned earlier in the day on Queen Elizabeth II from a 2,800-mile tour of 11 Euro pean countries. It was the first leg of what was billed as the Around-the-World-Race, which began June 16 in Istanbul, Turkey.

The cars will leave tomorrow from Times Square for-a tour across the United States. The 6,157-mile Bicen-tennial celebration will end at the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco.

The event is a recreation of a 1908 race that began in Times Square. Six cars drove through the cheering throngs: of 50,000 in midtown on a snowy Feb. 12, and the lead story in The New York Times reported that 250,000 spectators lined the eight-mile route to cheer the gallant adventurers. Several observers yesterday, including some who wore Democratic Party delegate tags, posed questions about the Dodge to the 64year-old Schuler, a Morrison, Ill., automobile dealer.

several mishaps in Europe, most them minor.

"The Franklin hurned out an ignition in Belgrade [Yngoslavia], and Schuler had to tow the car," said Steven Potash, the event's project director. "The Ford ist have had at least 30 flat tires, as many as six or seven in one day.
"But Eddie Schuler kept us going. He and his son Mark are great mechanics, and they made all the repairs, ei-ther on the road or sometimes we would wind up in repair shops in the various countries. Eddie would get into the pit and fix the cars." Schuler has to crank his car to start it. The Dodge broke a spring, and he is waiting for the oew part that is being sent from Morrison taken from a similar car that he also owns.

could a 13th-round draft choice, a hlack guy from Dallas, make it like this?" he asked.

For many Giant fans, Lockhart was the tast link to the players of the great years. When he reported in 1965, he scrimmaged against such receivers as Del Shofner, Homer Jones and Joe Morrisoo. He covered them so well that Emlen Tunnell, who coached the Giants' secondary and who had been the National Footbalt League's top defensive back, told him, "Skinny, that's the way to play it—just like a spider."

After that day, people often forgot that Lockhart's first name was Carl. At 6 feet 2 ioches and only 170 pounds. be was an athletic windmill of arms and knees battling away enemy passes. He winds up his career with 41 interceptions, behind only Tunnell and Jim Patton among Giants. For the last eight seasons he was the club's defensive captain, playing free safety. He was the team's semon player in length of service.

"My regret," he said, "is never playing for a championship team."

Only One-Year Contracts Although there was little question after his rookie sea-son that he would be a Giants fixture, he never signed a contract of more than one year. Each pact was negotiated with Wellington

Mara.

After one hard bargaining session, when Lockhart refused to sign, Tunnell told him, "You should be paying them to play." Tunnell meant that he considered it an annual that he considered it and the consider bonor to wear the Giants' uniform.

woo was the silver, which was achieved by the eight in an upset. The year before, United States prestige in a sport that it had dominated for five decades hit bottom, as no American qualified for any final at the world event. From failure came a resolve within rowing to end old antagonisms between the clubs and the colleges, to start up national training camps from which would come selected all-star eights and fours for international competition, and to raise appreciable funds for an impoverished sport which has no spectator income. Under the leadership of Hart Perry, a prep school master at Kent who heads the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, these aims were achieved together with-the smooth ioclusion of an entire women's crew program, which grew rapidly mto the national team.

Simply to row is not difficult, and the power comes from the legs. Athletes of good size (over six feet and op to 215 pounds) not skilled enough to he at the top in football or basketball make excellent oarsmen. The hard part is becoming of world rank with the endless, pun-ishing training that is re-quired on and off the water.

Randy Jablonic, the Wisconain coach, says, "The really exciting thing in rowing is discovering what you can do with your body. The racing part is secondary."

In another Olympic water sport, canoeing and kayak-ing, the picture is quite dif-

American canocist. Olympic canoeing and kayaking are similar to row-ing in the number of daily perseverance necessary to perfect stroking techniques. A single blade without fulcrum is used for canoeing, and a double blade is used

Executives Swarm to Convention City

Common Market Trade Patterns

By STEVEN RATTNER

There seems to be no reason for businessmen to come to New York for the convention. Almost none are delegates, the modest fundraising permitted under the new campaign laws is largely over, and Jimmy Carter has never been particularly attractive to them anyway.

Still, a swarm of executives. has descended on New York and, together with the even larger number already in residence, they have been work-

I.R.S. Posts Rule on Oil Tax

WASHINGTON, July 14 (UPI)—The Internal Revenue Service said today oil companies would have to pay foreign taxes against United States income taxes.

The oil industry took foreign tax credits to reduce United States taxable income by more than $5 billion in 1973, the latest year for which data are available.

An I.R.S. spokesman said it was not possible to determine immediately the value of credits that might be lost under the ruling. To be eligible for the tax credit, the I.R.S. sald a corporation first would have to pay royalties to a foreign government.

Then if the foreign government imposed any additional charges, these would be assessed by I.R.S. to determine whether they were actually taxes for the purpose of tax credit in the United States.

Amtrak Adding Rail Facilities

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—Amtrack is taking command of an additional 722 miles of track, along with hundreds of railway statioos, and officials say ownership should improve services and facilitate renovation of depots.

A massive series of property transfers that began April 1, under the Federal Rail Reorganization Act are continuing. Antrak has been leasing much of the property from ficancially ailing rail lines. The purchases total nearly $90 million and include a dozen major repair facilities, 722 miles of track and hundreds of passenger stations, rail cars and locomotives.

Soviet Industrial Output Up

MOSCOW, July 14 (AP)-Soviet industrial output in the first six months of this year was 5 per cent above the like period in 1975, the Soviet press ageocy Tass reported today. It said the half-year figures exceeded the plan that calls for an increase in industrial production for the eotire vear of 4.3 percent.

Tass, which released the figures on a Council of Ministers meeting, said above-plan industrial production from January through June was worth $5.3 billion.

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin presided over the council that ordered special emphasis be given to agricultural technology, upcoming harvests, the protection of grain supplies and the preparation of animal feed.

Denmark Pulls Out of Oil Plan

COPENHAGEN, July 14 (Reuters)-The Danish Government has abandoned plans for state participation in offshore oil and gas development in Denmark's sector of the North Sea, Preben Wilhjelm, a member of the Parilamentary Underground Resources committee said. Mr. Wilhjelm told reporters after a cloaed committee session that the state's demands for participation in Damish Underground Coosortium (Danish A. P. Moeller, Shell, Chevron and Texaco), the sole concessionair in the Danish sector, had been dropped completely in a draft for a new state-D.U.C. agreemeot. The Government has been oegotiating with D.U.C. for the past six months to reduce its role in the North Sex on the ground that the consortium had failed to fulfill the terms of the concession. Mr. Wilhjelm said he had disclosed the coofidential committee draft because he believed the Govrament should try for compulsory state participation in D.U.C.

Trade Minister Jenseo would not comment on the disclosure but said the committee would have an opportunity to discuss this when it meets again tomorrow.

Personal Finance: Divorce and Taxes

In a "60 Minutes" television program, originally shown in program, originally shown in February and repeated in June, a young couple identi-fied as Chris and Anita Mur-ray of New York were filmed in the Dominican Republic where, for tax purposes, they had divorced one year and remarried the next in a matter of days over the yearend.

As had already been dis-covered by thousands of similar couples, it was much cheaper from a tax standpoint for two well paid people earning roughly the same salary to file separately as single taxpayers than to file jointly as a married couple. It followed then that to be divorced in one year—even for only a brief time—the Murrays could take advantage of this quirk in the tax law and save money.

Unfortunately, the Internal Revenue Service saw the program too. In fact, in a letter to the television show read on the program soon after the repeat presentation, the LR.S. called the divorceremarriage "a sham" and said it would soon issue a case had been well worth the effort. As related on the TV program, if they had filed a joint tax return as a married comple they would have paid $16,312. Filing separately as single individuals, they paid $13,824. The saving, appar-ently was $2,488—more than enough to pay for the trip to the Dominican Republic and the divorce-remarriage. "We knew people were doing it;" an I.R.S. spokes-man said, "the show just gave it more publicity."

As reported by Prentice-Hall Inc., the tax service, the LRS, ruled that "the true nature of a transaction must be considered in light of the plain intent and purpose of he statute. Such transaction should not be given any effect for Federal income tax purposes if it merely serves the purpose of tax avoid-anybody who is discovered taking advantage of the practice would be subject to additional taxes, generally for the last three years.

But is there any similar circumstance enabling oncemarried taxpayers to file as single individuals? Yes, says the LR.S. in the same tax ruling. Mr. and Mrs. Jones marry in one year and file a joint Federal tax return for their combined income. The following year a state court annuls the marriage and de-crees that no valid marriage ever existed. The Tax Code provides that in general the determination of whether an individual is married shall be made "as of the close of the taxable year." The I.R.S. under a separate ruling will not dis-pute the validity of "any di-vorce decree" until a court declares a divorce to be in-

The I.R.S. did not name the Murrays but noted that although two individuals were divorced under the valid laws of a foreign country, the divorce "was not intended by them to have effect except to enable them to qualify as ummarried individuals who would be eligible to file separate returns.

"in addition," the I.R.S. said, "they did remarry each other early in the succeeding taxable year." However, in the second in-stance, where a state court amnified a marriage and de-creed that no valid marriage ever existed, the LR.S. ruled that the two individuals were single taxpayers as of the close of the taxable year.

Thus, the LR.S. said, they must file amended tax re-turns as unmarried individ-uals. In the sham transaction, it added, couples must file either return or separate ones for married individuals filing separately. An I.R.S. spnkesmen said that, in general, married couples pay less taxes by filing jointly

FINANCIAL STATEMENTS 1975

During the course of 1975, the progress of MONTE-DISON and of its major subsidiaries was conditioned by the recession which characterized the entire year. The reduction in total proceeds, opposed to an in-crease in operating costs, resulted for MONTEDISON S.P.A. in a loss of 72.6 billion Lire ($ 106.3 million). after depreciation and amortization totalling 161.3 billion Lire ($ 236.2 million) applying the standard fiscal rates. Also the other major associated Companies soal rates. Also the other major associated Companies of the Group closed the year with negative results. During the Stockholders' Meeting held in Millar on April 22, the financial report was approved and it was decided to partially cover the loss of the year utilizing 24.1 billion Lire ($ 35.3 million) from prior years' earnings and 28.8 billion Lire ($ 42.2 million) from the fund for stabilization of dividends. The remaining loss, equal to 19.7 billion Lire ($ 29.2 million), was then carried forward.

The Companies operating in the retailing field, and STANDA in particular, were affected by the reduced consumer demand and the increase in operating expenses, resulting mainly from higher labor cost and therefore STANDA closed 1975 with heavy losses. During 1975, the Group - implementing the medium term development program - made new capital expenditures amounting to 619 billion Lire ($ 906.3 million), 90% of which related to the chemical, pharmaceutical and textile fields. Our activity in Research and Technological Development showed interesting schievements. cal Development showed interesting achievements. Following our success in developing new high yield catalysts for polypropylene, an agreement was reached with MITSUI PETROCHEMICAL of Japan for cooperation in this particular field, in which MITSUI also has been very active. It resulted in a new process which has stirred considerable interest among producers of this polymer.

Another important agreement was the Econolog to AIPSA of Spain, of MONTEDISON's original process for the purification of pyrite cinders. The engineering will be handled in cooperation with the two Companies McKEE and DORR OLIVER.

Replying to the questions raised by some of the stockholders present at the meeting, MONTEDISON. Chairman reported that the demand in the chemical industry is beginning to show signes of improvement also in Italy. In point of fact, the consolidated surnover for MONTEDISON Group during the first querter of 1975 amounted to 1,000 billion Lire ($ 1,464.1 million) with an increase of 24% over the same period of 1975. This improvement should not lead to minimize the womes arising from a continuous increase of operating costs and the restrictions on the pricing of fertilizers, pharmaceutical and oil products imposed by Italian legislation.

Finally, the continuous increase in labor cost, the need to restructure the fiber sector and the problems arising from a financial framework which, in common with the majority of Italian Compenies, suffers from the chairman of the Interpublic Group, a large advertising company, "Most businessmen are fascinated by the whole question of power and how it works."

Executives Swarm to Convention City Amex Market Index

Some of the executives have come with their own business interests at heart. "We cultivate a particular market with labor unions," said Howard Rapoport, president of the American Income Life Insurance Company of Waco, Tex. "This is an opportunity to embellish this image because so many labor leaders are here this weekanybody who's anybody."
Mr. Rapoport began as a supporter of Senator Walter F.
Mondale of Minnesota, switched to Senator Frank Church of Idaho and first met Jimmy Carter at a breakfast oo Tuesday morning.

Assesses Carter's Interest "The Carter people are try-ing to evidence that there is a breadth of support and in-terest," said Richard L. Rosenthal, chairman of the Citizens Utilities Company in Stamford, Conn. "It's very useful for them to have prin-others, has been meeting this week with "a broad cross national businessmen" in an effort to rally support for Mr. Carter from corporate executives, who have been often apathetic and occasionally antagonistic towards the Georgian. Part of this week's job is to form a Business men's Committee for Carter, which is scheduled to be announced oext Wednesday.

For whatever reason the businessmen are involved in these quasi-convention activities, most agree that their involvement stems mainly from the fact that the convention is being held in the nation's financial capital, where out-of-town executives visit frequently anyway to see their bankers, advertising agencies or clients.

'All Day on Wall Street'

"I spent all day Wednesday on Wall Street," Mr.

"They come because it's
New York," said Preston Robert Tisch, president of Loews Corporation and chairman of the convention citizens committee. "Their business is seeing people and they can see an awful lot of people while they're in New York.

Often, the seeing of people is an informal process, best conducted over a drink or a meal. "All I'm doing is going to a whole bunch of recep-tions," said Michael A. Tay-lor, assistant to the chairman of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, Inc. "It's more a matter of keeping up old acquaintances." Toward this end, Mr. Taylor threw a dinner of his nwn for "a number of political types — delegates, some senators and congressmen."

For the politically entranced executives, the milieu for rubbing elbows with the right people is often a glittering party given by socially promioeot Democrats. Popular among businessmen this week were Mary Lasker's fuod-raising cocktail party, Carol Houssamen's brunch for higwigs and a Democratic Finance Committee brunch

Because we're talking about our biweekly report for individual investors called Perspective.

This report is prepared by the same Research Department that has earned the respect of America's important financial institutions. The same Research Department that prides itself on the depth and scope of its industry and company studies.

Perspective, only four pages long, is clear, concise and looks to the market's future, not its past. It regularly features:

The Fundamentals—tracks the trends that have impact on the market. Such special areas of import as capital spending, consumer confidence, interest rates, inventories.

Portfolio Strategy - how your portfolio should be structured to take advantage of the opportunities and avoid the pitfalls, with specific buy and sell recommendations.

Spotlight—a thorough but concise discussion of an investment idea. Briefly-succinct comments on selected companies discussed in recent research reports. Companies regularly covered by our Research Department, that might represent unusual potential.

And in the most recent edition, a special, added feature—our current economic forecast for the balance of 1976 and for 1977.

many, July 14, (Reuters)— The State of Pennsylvania and Volkswagen have signed a provisional agreement for Volkswagen to establish an assembly plant in New Stanton, the company announced today,

The statement said details regarding the proposed $120 unresolved, primarily concern Pennsylvania's financial contribution to the project, Volkswagen is reported to be seeking a lower interest rate than the 9 percent Pennsyl-vania has offered on a state

These details are expected to be settled within the next few weeks on the basis of offers already made, the Volkswagen statement said.

Purex to Appeal Antitrust Decision

The Purex Corporation said yesterday that it would appeal a Federal District Court decision last Tuesday dismissing Purex's civil antitrust action against the Procter & Gamble Company and the Clorox Company.

In a draft opinion issued in Los Angeles, Federal Judge
William P. Gray rejected
Purex's claims that Procter &
Gamble had violated antitrust statues by illegally acquiring the Clorox Company and allegedly trying to drive Purex out of the liquid bleach market by predatory and un-lawful practices.

General Dynamics In Belgian Pact

A second agreement for co-production of the F-16 fighter plane, a $97.8 million contract with the Belgian aircraft manufacturer, Fairey, S.A., was announced by the General Dynamics Corporation of St. Louis.

Fairey, together with another Belgian company, Sab-ca, will assemble up to 116 F-16's for the Belgian air force and up to 58 for the Danish air force.
General Dynamics announced a similar co-production cootract Tuesday with the Dutch aircraft maker, Fokker-VFW B.V.

British Oil Buys North Sea Interest

The British National Oil Corporation said yesterday that it had acquired 65 percent of the Butmah Oil Company's interest in the Thistie oilfield in the North Sea for $155.7 million. It was also announced that the corporation had acquired 95 percent of Burmah Oil Develcompany for the field.

Exxon Unit Raises Jet Fuel Prices

Exxon USA, the domestic unit of the Exxon Corpora-tion, amounced yesterday that it had increased the price of all grades of jet fuel by 1.5 cents a gailon. The increase follows a simlar one on June 26.

Meanwhile, the New Jersey Zinc Company, a division of Gulf and Western Industries, board increase on all zinc oxide products of 3 ceots a pound, effective tomorrow.

Mazda Offering Engine Warranty

DETROIT, July 14 (UPI)— In an effort to repair the tarnished image of the rotary engine, the manufacturers of the Mazda automobile today announced a 75,000-mile, or engine.

It is one of the longest new-car engine warranties ever offered by an automaker. General Motors currently offers a five-year, or 60,000-mile, warranty on the Chev-

five-year warranty on the rolet Vega engine. To further spur Mazda sales, the warranty will be completely transferable,

Changes Are Due at Wells, Rich

By PHILIP H. DOUGHERTY One of the distinctive characteristics of Wells, Rich, Greene has been that it hired only top professionals and trained no one: It made for a lean operation.

It is, however, one method of operation that is going to be changed by Charles Fredericks Jr., who joined June 1 as president and chief operating officer.

"We've got no Indians, only chiefs," he said yesterday, "and I think it's important to bring in some Indians and build o second line of management." management."

management."

For all of its great creative reputation and standing as 15th largest United States ageocy, Wells, Rich, Greece has been undermanaged in the opinion of Mr. Fredericks, former executive vice president of Ogilvy & Matherer.

He said that the 10-year-old agency had had a total eniphasis on the creative prod-uct, ooting "that is the way to huild an agency."

But at the direction of Mary Wells Lawrence, founder, chairmao and chief executive, Mr. Fredericks is seeking a way of institutionalizing the creative flair so the agency "will last forever." Mrs. Lawrence, unlike the first adman he worked for, Milton Biow, wants her agency to outlast her. 'I'm convinced that Milton Biow didn't like second-generation management and closed his agency rather than turn it over," Mr. Fredericks remarked. Then Fredericks joined David Ogilvy's outfit here an exactly opposite attitude prevailed.

He thinks that by next spring Wells, Rich, Greene will be hiring trainees in media, copy and account

Now, while the new president says, "We have without a doubt the best creative agency in New York," he wants to develop some balance by building up the ac-count management side. And that, he said, is an easier job than trying to make a strong marketing agency into a creative one.
Mrs. Lawreoce has also charged hlm, he said, with setting things up so that she is no longer practically actiog as account executive on every account in the agency but also is free to work oo bigger pictures.

. Mr. Fredericks, spending two to three days a week on the rodd, has met just about all of the clients and is determined to make them happy. One way of doing that, of course, is by making sure their advertising is right and that's why Mr. Fredericks starts each morning at the office in a session with Keo Olshao, the new creative director, going over all of the creative product.
Mr. Fredericks, a lawyer would like a little time to get the bouse io order before actively seeking new business. But, he said, Wells, Rich, Greene appears to be everybody's · shopping list" and right now has six prospects. The biggest of them is Burger King, the Pillsbury subsidiary with more than $16 million in bill-

Mr. Riklis's aggregate di-rect remuneration during the fiscal year ended jan. 31 in-cluded $550,000 as a bonus from the proceeds of the 1975 sale of the International Playtex subsidary to Esmark Inc., the court notice said. At the same time, Mr. Becker received a $350,000 bonus aod Mr. Lane a $100,000 bonus from the sale. The suit filed by Mr. Wietschner also asserted that $2 million of the proceeds of the Playtex sale were used as boouses to seoior managers of Playtex.

The settlement also calls for the termination of Mr. Riklis's contract with Rapid and the execution of a new employment contract for him with Rapid and McCrory oo "less favorable terms."

Also provided is a "partial" termination of the employment cootract between Mir Becker and Rapid and substi-tution of an employment contract between Mr. Becker and Schenley, both of which have been consummated as part of the settlement. In addition, the proposed settlement provides for the waiver by Mr. Becker of cer-tain eights under his partially terminated agreement w Rapid; the waiver by Mr. Rik-lis and Mr. Becker of certain vested rights under their employmeot contracts with Rapid, and modification io the employment contract between Mr. Lane and Rapid on "terms less favorable" to Mr. Lane.

The Delaware Building and the Colorado-Kansas Building both became hotels in Belmar, as did the Glass Magalucation, a field in zine, a building in which ment is falling and glass artifacts were sold. All three have long disappeared from their ocean-front sites. The Delaware lasted until just a few years ago when, under the name "Surfside Hotel" it was destroyed by

> According to Dr. C. D. Wrege, a professor at Rut-gers and a student of the history of the New Jersey Shore Alexander's news store in the center of Spring Lake's little business district started out as part of some-thing called The Department of Public Comfort.

> One of the most popular buildings at the Exposition, the Department of Public Comfort housed the telegraph office, the press room and a message center where visitors could pick up mail aid come from the brought here where, in slightly altered form, it became The Lake House Hotel. One wing was used as a bowling alley. Later that wing was moved again and Dr. Wrege suspects that it is now Alexander's news store.

Records of many of the sales are incomplete, Dr. Wrege said, probably be-cause some of the deals may have been rigged or made under the table. Thus, he is almost certain, but not completely sure, that two wings of the Southern Restaurant, a private venture at the Cen-tennial, became the Avon and Red Bank stations of the New York and Long Branch Railroad. The Red Bank station still stands.

There are some buildings that diligeot detective work has not turned up. The Arkansas Building was sup-posed to have gone to Ocean Grove, but it cannot be found. The New York Times said the Ceotennial Baok was going to Ocean Grove, too. Other reports had it destined for Ocean beach (Belmar). It could not be traced.

Some people probably have parts of Centennial buildings in their homes and do not know it. The Agricultural Hall, which covered 8.5 acres and was built almost entirely of wood, was bought by James Hunter for $13,100.

Mr. Hunter got several mil-lion board feet of nearly new lumber when he dismantled the hall. He used it to build number of houses in the 5pring Lake area. Richard J. Dobbins, who built most of the buildioga at the Centennial Exposition, bought back at least a dozen of them and also apparently acquired some of the lumber from the Agricultural Hall. He later used wood from the Centennial buildings to put up some 40 farmbouses in Monmouth County as well as
